Introduction

This report is dedicated to drawing both an internal and external analysis to the Burning Man event and its competitors; Tomorrowland, and Coachella with regard to brand positioning, value, and target audience. An analogy is made of the marketing communication - of all of the mentioned events - with the aim to provide Burning Man with an improved marketing business positioning and communication strategy to have increased target audience outreach.

Furthermore, alongside a great deal of research, various tools have been utilized in the making of this report such as a survey questionnaire, as well as applying analysis when needed through the use of a variety of business analysis models, and applicable visuals for further clarification.

Chapter 1: Event Selection and Research Question Formulation

1.1 Introduction

Every year, at the end of summer, more than 50 thousand people gather to create a short-lived city on an archaic lakebed in the Black Rock Desert of northwestern Nevada (Dawn, 2012).

1.2 Research Strategy

Central

How can Burning Man improve their event in regards to media exposure, inclusivity, and safety in order to gain more visitors?

Sub

- Media Exposure

How can we get Burning Man more social media exposure?

- Attendance

How can Burning Man gain more visitors?

- Identity

How can the event's identity be better laid out for the target audience?

Chapter 2: Internal and External Brand Analysis

2.1 Introduction

This chapter deals with investigating the Burning Man brand identity and outlines the various distinguishable values of the brand. Furthermore, an external brand analysis is made using the PESTLE model (Aguilar, 1967).

2.2 Internal Analysis

Mission & Vision

The brand's mission is to create an annual-held event that goes by the name Burning Man with the purpose of guiding and preserving the sustainable community created by its culture.

“Our intention is to generate a society that connects each individual to his or her creative powers” (Burning Man’s official website, Event page). They would like to create participation in the community, to the bigger dimension of civil growth, and to the alike enormous world of nature that happens away from society.

Background Info

Burning Man began as a beach bonfire among a crowd of artists more than 30 years ago. Since then it has evolved into a comprehensive society and movement. Once a year thousands of people gather in the Black Rock Desert in the state of Nevada to create “Black Rock City”. Burning Man is all about art, self-expression, and activism.

Brand Values and Brand Identity Model

We analyzed the following five distinguishable brand values.

1. Creativity

The Culture, the way they dress. The location and build-up of the festival.

2. Community-Based

Burning Man is all about making connections and meeting new people. The festival also has a lot of loyal customers.

3. Radically-Inclusive

Anyone is welcome to the festival statement.

Safety.

Diversity and Equity strategies.

4. Spiritual

Burning Man is a festival that represents culture and freedom of expression.

The festival is more focused on the spiritual experience than the actual music and dancing aspect of the festival.

5. Innovative

Community That blends art, technology, and common practices into a ceaseless, honorable course of joy.

"As seen in the after movie video or read in articles art and technology is a big part of Burning Man" (Hal, 2020).

Extending the analysis on the event, we chose the PRISM model as in the figure below (1) (Kapferer's Brand-Identity Prism model, 2009). After having analyzed the brand using the dedicated model we identified various aspects of the brand for instance;

The Logo

Burning Man: Segmentations

Using research outcome from (Angus, 2019) which utilized the Black Rock City Census data from 2018, we came up with the following Burning Man analysis. Figure A demonstrates the demographics, sociomonmics, geographic and psychographic segmentations of Burning Man.

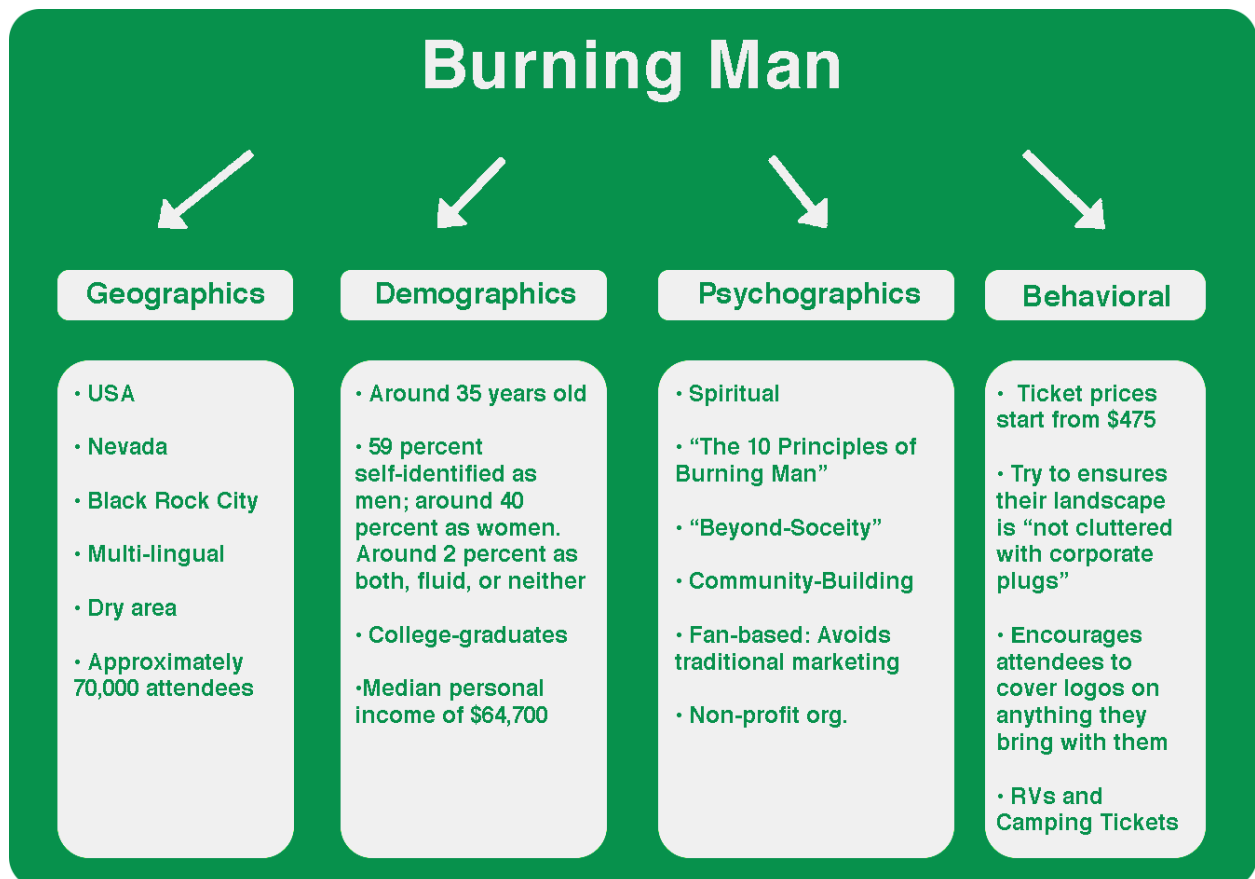

Figure A

Burning Man is quite fan-base oriented and would do absolutely anything to prove to their loyal communities that they are devoid of any type of marketing and that all profits exclusively go to leasing public land, camp-sites and RVs. In collusion, doing the segmentation analysis will help us further in our research about the brand and understanding the event identity accurately.

Design and Language

In comparison with the competitors Coachella and Tomorrowland, Burning Man has a very simple website layout design. Little use for animated visuals or videos. The website could definitely use a little improvement. Adding an after-movie video of the event on the homepage and or converting the layout to a more modern one. Burning Man's homepage (Figure 2).

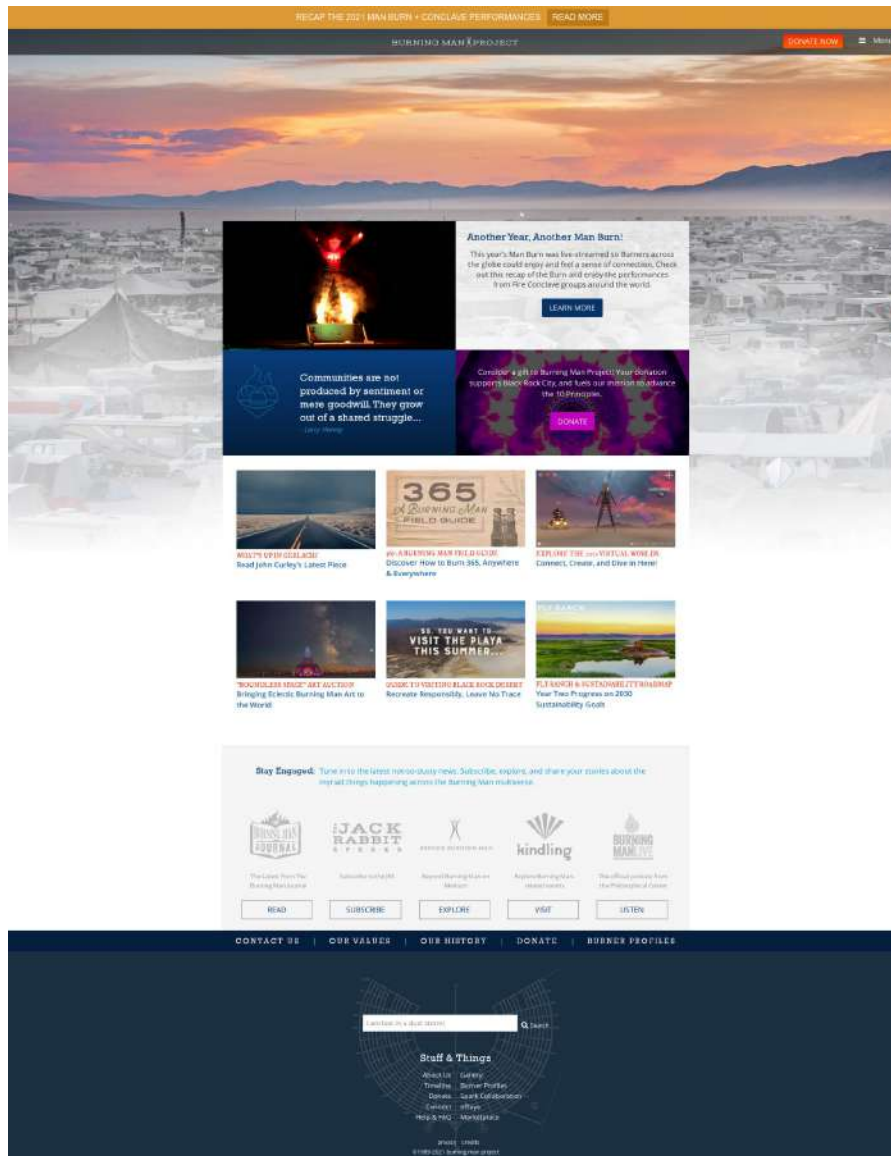

Figure 2

Burning Man: SWOT Analysis

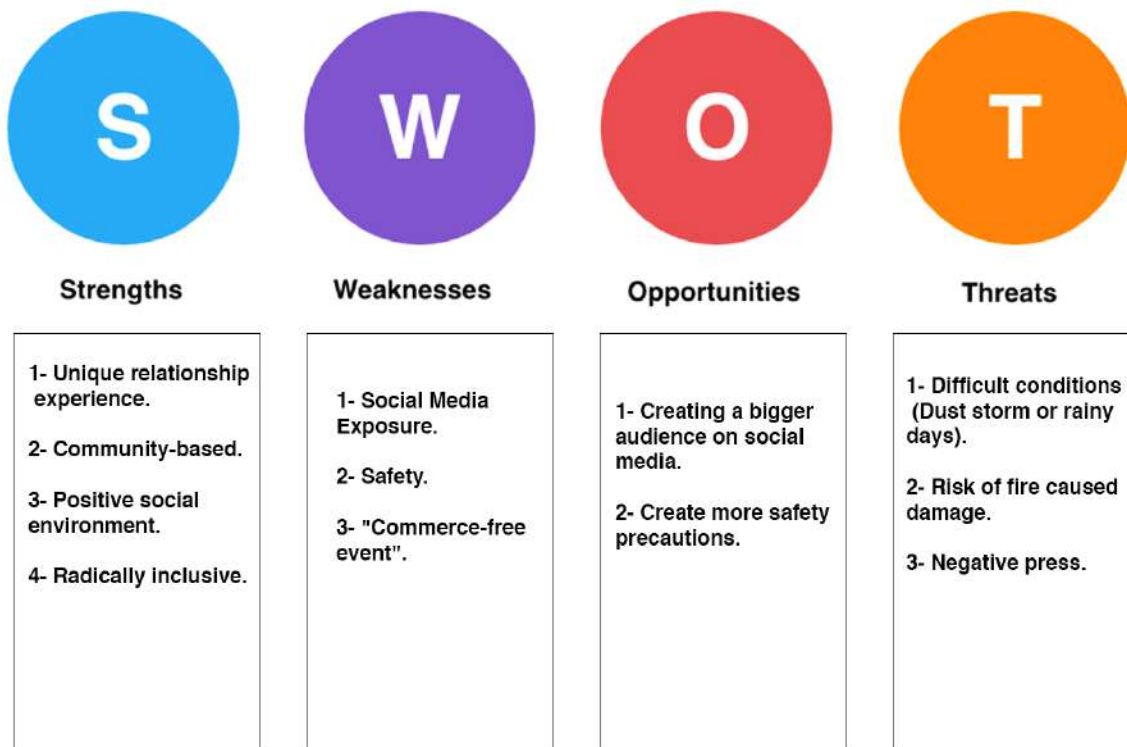

Figure 3

In conclusion, Burning Man provides visitors with very special experiences. It creates room for bondings with other people. It also aims at including all people no matter what their ethnicity, gender, or ideologies are. Although it is lacking social media exposure amongst other things. However, it has many opportunities as well.

2.9 External Analysis

Introduction

Here we used the PESTLE analysis to analyze and monitor the macro-environmental factors of Burning Man.

Burning Man: PESTLE Model

In order for us to have a deeper understanding of the external analysis, we followed the PESTEL model as in the figure below (4).

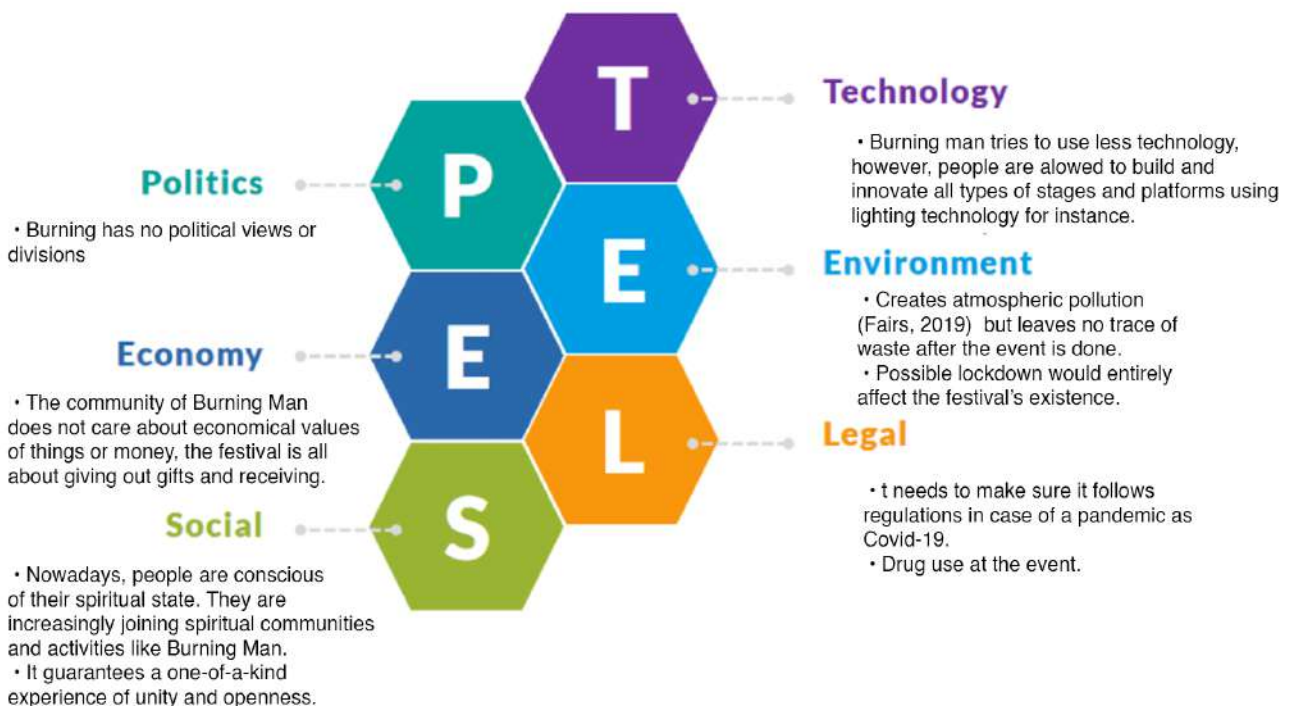

Figure 4

Furthermore, we can see that one of the threats that would affect Burning Man is the risk of the pandemic that might spread corona if people don't follow regulations. Possible lockdown would entirely affect the festival's existence. Another threat is pollution. Although compared to other music festivals Burning Man did a great job of leaving nothing behind, it still produced atmospheric pollution from the burning of huge wooden artworks and the transportation of approximately 70,000 attendees (Fairs, 2019).

Burning Man: PESTLE Model - Elaboration

Politics

Burning Man is all about the concept of “Beyond Society” where people build communities and help each other free of charge. The event does not hold a specific political stance other than inclusivity, equality and freedom.

Economy

Burning Man has a multi million dollar budget. Most of the funds are covered by anonymous donors and by crowdfunding promotions! Burning Man is centered on a distributing community and its “commerce-free” status that they go by.

Social

The event is full with a mix of different cultures around the world and this makes the event unique and special. One way to notice the cultural difference is by our survey results but most importantly it's seen because of its art, and immeasurable individual acts of self-expressions. The artists and art are one of the major factors that affect the culture. With our studies we hope that Burning Man works towards welcoming more diverse people and increasing its cultural diversity on their events!

Technology

Burning man has and always had an outstanding way to innovate and use technology in their events, starting from light shows with drones and ending with a phone navigation app specifically designed for burners to navigate on site, they developed a tech-team that contributes and innovates every year to improve the events experience.

Environment

Burning Man is deemed one of the largest Leave No Trace events, however, attendance of such high volume and venues, besides the massive art installations and structures could be leaving an impact on Black Rock City (Lee, 2017). Therefore, it is important to comprehend any possible impact the event could have on the environment. In 2017 about 80,000 people flocked to the Burning Man festival. As a result, an environmental-impact study was carried out in 2018, and it focused on the potential impacts of the event's growth over the next decades (Lee, 2017).

Legal

Health pandemics such as COVID-19 could have legal implications for the event. Lockdowns and other social distancing laws could have severe effects on the event, for instance having to cancel the whole event similarly to what happened in 2020 and 2021.

Chapter 3: Competition Analysis

3.1 Introduction

Burning Man festival is not the only festival that has community at its core value, both Tomorrowland and Coachella are two main competitors that likewise promote connecting people from around the world, claiming to be unique in doing so and promise a one of a kind experience.

This chapter is focused on identifying the differences and similarities among the two direct competitors concerning brand positioning, brand values, and communication. Furthermore, a comparison on the basis of brand values among the main event and its competitors has been made (please refer to Appendix B page. 49).

In this chapter, we will take a close look at the following inquiries

- How does the event position itself in this market compared to the competition?
- What our main event can learn from its competitors.
- Identifying affinities among our main event with its competitors.

Why did we choose Coachella and Tomorrowland as competitors for Burning Man?

Coachella and Tomorrowland are events that are popular all around the world like Burning Man. The events have similarities in their target groups and ticket pricing.

For example: Both Burning Man and Tomorrowland have characteristics like self-expression and freedom as part of their target group. Coachella and Burning Man are both two of the biggest events in the US, they also have similarities in their ticket pricing for both of the events the general pricing is in between the 400 and 500 dollars.

The two main competitors for Burning Man are

3.2 Tomorrowland

Background

An academic account of the Tomorrowland festival and its place in the global culture and business of EDM events was published in 2020. It typically draws about 400,000 attendees to Boom, Belgium, or up to 70,000 a day. (Barrionuevo, 2021) Tomorrowland has famous DJ players: Armin Van Buuren, Swedish House Mafia, Hardwell, Nervo, Tiesto, Dimitri Vegas, Like Mike, and Avicii...etc (Daniel,2021).

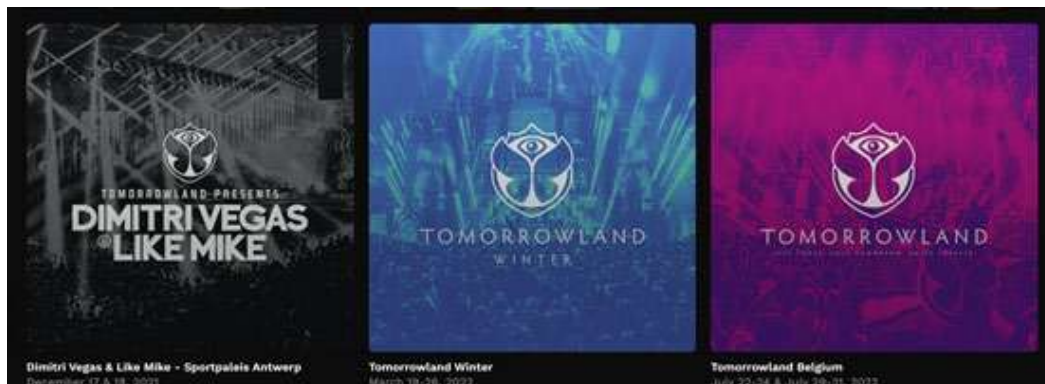

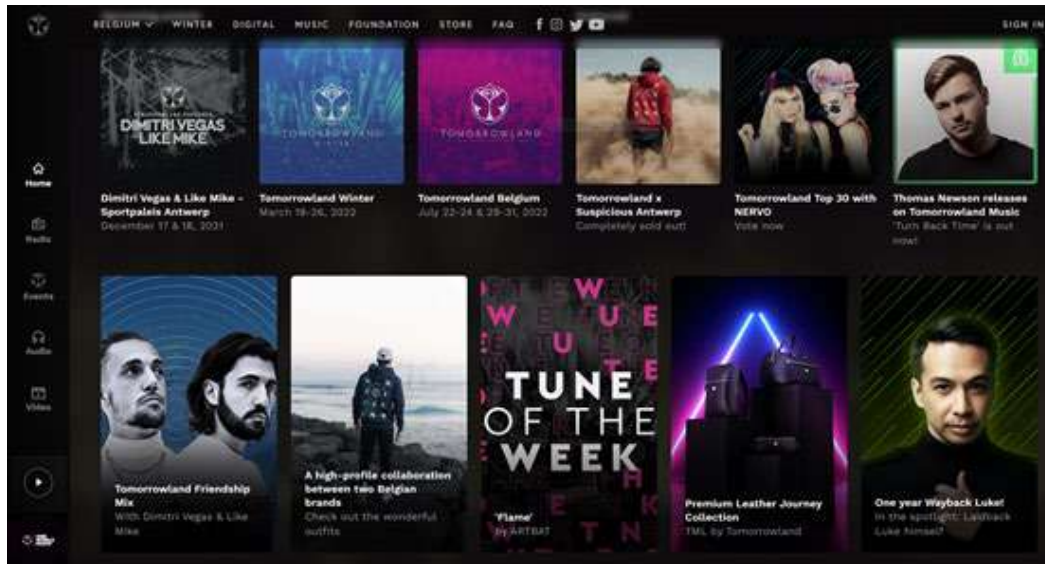

About Tomorrowland

Tomorrowland is one of the largest music festivals in the world held in Boom, Belgium, organized and owned by the founders, the brothers' Beers. Tomorrowland was first held in 2005 and has since become one of the world's most notable global music festivals. It takes place every year in summer and now stretches over 2 weekends, welcoming 400,000 People of Tomorrow from over 200 countries, and selling out in minutes year after year.

Over the past 15 years, Tomorrowland has become a truly global phenomenon that connects people from every corner of the world. Tomorrowland has evolved into a global lifestyle brand and media powerhouse with its new festival Tomorrowland Winter in the French Alps, its fashion label TML by Tomorrowland and radio station One World Radio, the year-round MESA – The Tomorrowland Restaurant in Antwerp, Belgium, a yearly residence at Ushuaïa Ibiza, and much more. (Universal Music, 2021)

Visual Identity

Modern, Illusion, Electronic, Professional, Stylish, Approachable.

Target Audience

The target audience of Tomorrowland is young people between 18 and 28 years old who admire the sound of electronic music. The audience is very diverse and is presented by people all around the globe: India, Australia, Russia, Germany, South Korea, etc.,

The Difference Between Burning Man and Tomorrowland

The table below (Figure 5) lays out the core differences between our main event and one of its competitors.

Burning Man	Tomorrowland
- Every participant is Host, Medic, Janitor, Tour Guide, Audience and Entertainer. - No “Stages” area vs. “Camping” Area - “Burning Man is the music and art and people; profit isn’t the goal.” – Unknown - Ticket bought to contribute your share of the city infrastructure costs. (Participatory)	- More commercial, Burning Man is less corporate. - Attendees are either Entertainers, Staff, or Audience. - Physical division between stages & RV and camping area. - Ticket bought in exchange for entertainment. (Transactional)

Moreover, unlike the year’s biggest music festivals, Burning Man lacks an organized line-up of musicians. As the festival – err “community’s” – website notes, “We don’t book acts or provide entertainment. What happens here is up to you! There is no corporate sponsorship. You are entering a ‘decommodified’ space that values who you are, not what you have.” (Smith, 2012).

Communication Strategy

Tomorrowland has successfully used many social media platforms to broaden its brand awareness and create one of the most successful festivals in the world. The power of social media can expand a brand in just days. It has recently grown into a global phenomenon through its sensational use of social media to reach out to its target audience. Tomorrowland has a Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube account. Through these forums, it has allowed individuals to immerse themselves in wanting to be part of the magical festival (MTOFT13, 2015).

Tomorrowland: Brand Identity Model

Figure 6 demonstrates that Tomorrowland has limited the target group's age range and is more international. On the other hand, Burning Man accepts a broader age range and is suitable for everyone to go. Tomorrowland is a festival that celebrates music and life with famous DJs and incredible firework shows. However, Burning Man is a spiritual event/gathering focusing more on surviving in the desert, community-based, and burning wooden artworks. Both of the Events have loyal customers that are free-minded and go to the event for self-expression and freedom.

Tomorrowland: Segmentations

In order to have a better understanding of the identity of Tomorrowland, we had to apply segmentation analysis.

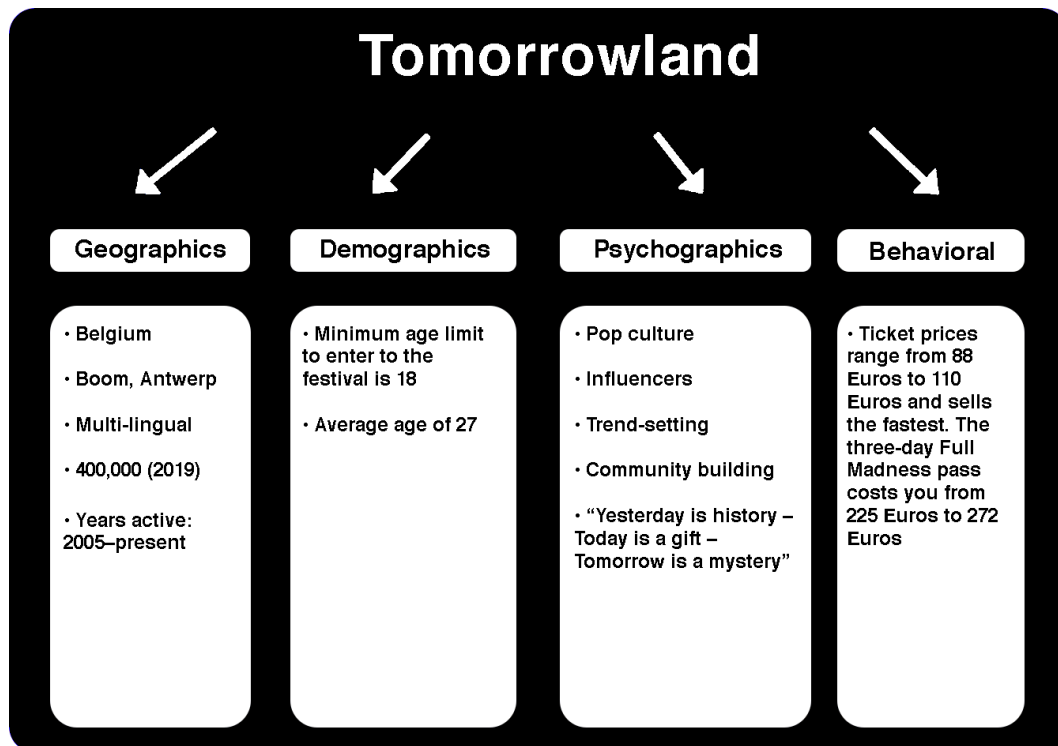

Figure B

Figure B demonstrates the demographics, sociemonmics, geographic and psychographic segmentations of Tomorrowland. The event started in 2015 and is now held in Boom, Antwerp. In 2019 the event hosted more than 400,000 attendees with an average age of 27 years old.

The event is all about the following genres; electronic, pop, hip hop, dance, and EDM. Tomorrowland festival is usually held on the final three weekends of July.

3.3 Coachella

Background

Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festivals is an annual music and arts festival held in the United States in Indio, California at the Empire Polo Club.

Coachella was founded in 1999 by co-founders; Paul Tolle and Rick Van Santen. Coachella is organized by Goldenvoice which is a subsidiary of AEG Presents.

The festival traces all the way back to a 1993 concert that Pearl Jam performed at the Empire Polo Club. The show validated the site's possibilities for larger events. The first Coachella Festival was held over the course of two days in October 1999.

Headliners included Rage Against the Machine, Beck, Tool, Morrissey, and Moby. As well, Perry Farrell, of Jane's Addiction and Porno for Pyros, played a solo set on opening day. The headliners were joined by about 50 other acts over the two days of the festival.

Although the first festival largely got positive reviews, it failed to attract the 70,000 attendees that Goldenvoice needed to turn a profit. They only managed to sell about 25 thousand tickets over the two days (Frances, 2012).

Visual Identity

Energetic, colorful, bold, artistic, Hip, fun, and exclusive

Target Audience

The target audience: millennial social media entrepreneurs, YouTubers, podcasters, influencers, bloggers of the world, flock to this scene and document the extent of their experience on social media.

The Difference Between Burning Man and Coachella

The Burning Man festival is all about art and expressing yourself. Burning Man is more focused on the spiritual and philosophical experience. While Coachella Valley Music Festival is more focused on the actual musical guests of the festival. Coachella Valley Music Festival has a reputation for fashion, influencers, and pop stars. On that note, the festivals differ quite a bit.

Communication Strategy

Coachella is one of the most well-mentioned events on social media. People from all over the world have heard about the festival through social media and influencers. Coachella shares content on a variety of topics on their social media, not just music, artist, or the line-up.

They share content about fashion, food, and art that appeals to a wide audience. The content is engaging and makes those who couldn't attend the festival long to go there someday (Blaise, 2017).

SWOT Analysis: Coachella

Just like with other events, we broke down the S.W.O.T of Coachella into the following table (Figure 7)

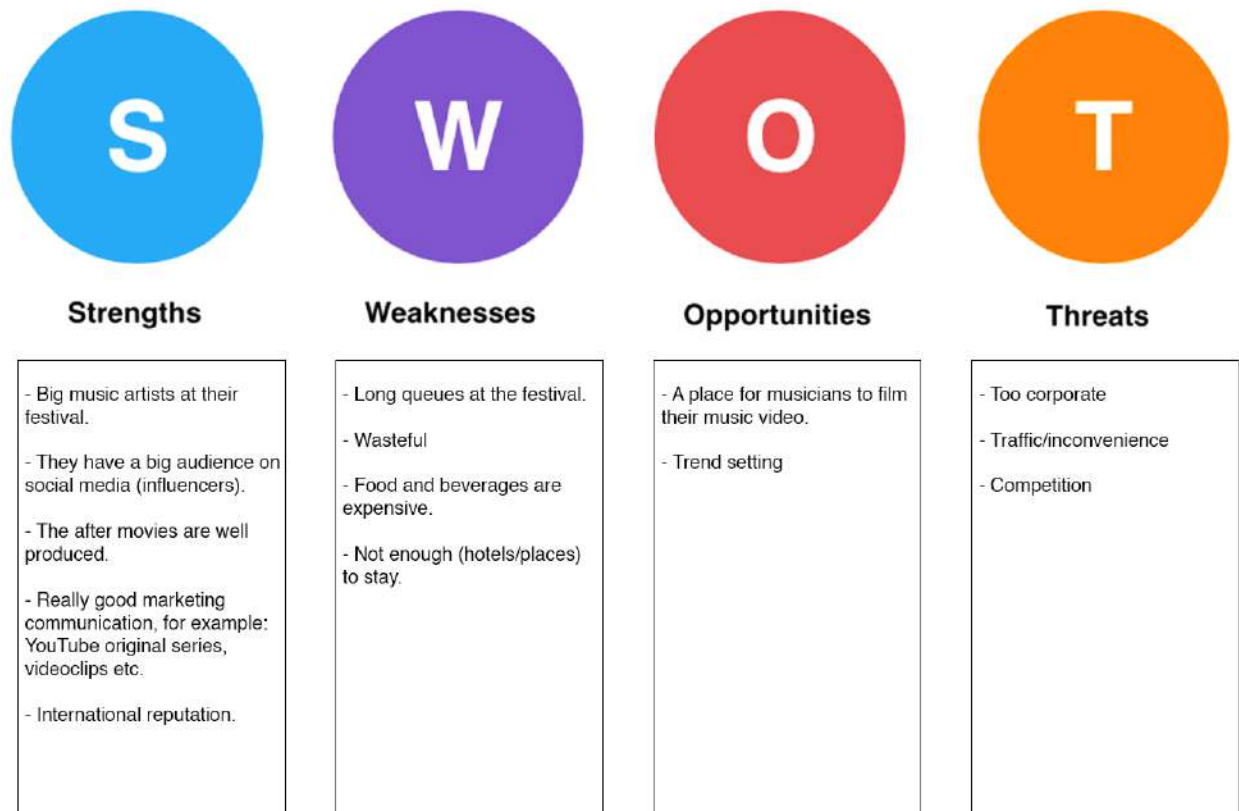

Figure 7

In Conclusion to figure (7), Coachella is a big festival with big musical artists every year. They have a great marketing team and are very active on social media. They do need to work on some inconveniences at the festival itself, like long queues, waste, traffic and too expensive food and beverages.

Coachella: Brand Identity Model

In this brand identity prism (Figure 8), we analyzed the physique, personality, relationship, culture, reflection, and self-image of the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival. We also applied a segmentation model where we talked about demographics, socioeconomics, geography, and physiographic. The general pricing of the event is also mentioned.

Figure 8

In closure to Figure 8, based on the brand identity prism the difference between Coachella and Burning Man can be easily identified. One big example of this is the personality and the culture of the festivals. Coachella has US-based artists and international artists while Burning Man has mainly techno artists. Culture wise Coachella is more about pop culture, fashion, influencers, and trend-setting. Burning Man is about spirituality, loyalty, and freedom.

Coachella: Segmentations

Following up the Brand Identity PRISM, segmentation is needed to get even better insight of the event's core identity.

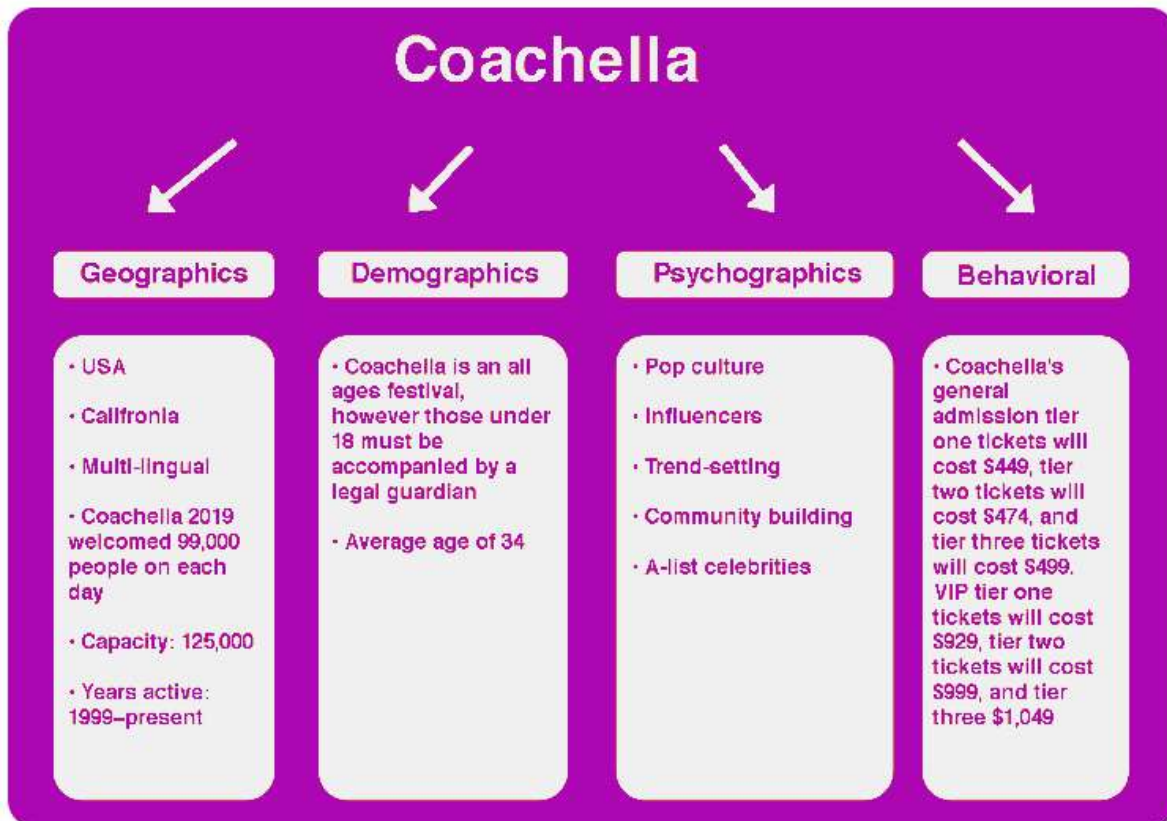

Figure C

Figure C demonstrates the demographics, sociemonmics, geographic and psychographic segmentations of Coachella. The event is located in the United States of America but is very international in nature. It hosted in 2019 around 99,000 people on each day the event was held. Coachella started for the first time in 19999 and today, the ticket prices range from $449 which is approximately 388,65 Euro and they could get as high as $1,049 approximately 908,01 Euro.

Chapter 4: Marketing Communication Analysis - Target Audience

4.1 Introduction

This chapter deals with identifying the target audience alongside making proper analysis using research besides applying dedicated models such as the updated empathy map (Gray, 2017).

Furthermore, we created a persona in order to have a sharpened understanding of the target audience.

4.2 Target Audience Analysis

The chosen target group for Burning Man is “college graduates” as a result of the data of Burning Man’s detailed annual census

Figure (9) illustrates the various ethnicities or types of people visiting the festival alongside percentages taken from Black Rock City in 2016.

	Burning Man	Massachusetts	US Population
Median household income	$94,200	$86,000	$65,000
Household income above $100,000	47.1%	46.8%	33.0%
College graduate	74.4%	41.5%	29.3%
Graduate degree holder	31.3%	13.9%	8.3%
Male	58.3%	49.2%	50.0%
White*	79.1%	69.5%	58.4%
Hispanic	4.3%	12.5%	19.1%
Black*	1.1%	7.3%	13.1%
Asian*	5.7%	7.7%	6.3%

Figure 9

4.3 Persona

The following (Figure 10) is a description of the chosen persona for the event.

We identified our persona for Burning Man as a 28-year-old female. She is a yoga instructor and a single mom. She is also interested in spirituality, traveling, and festivals. We decided to apply this persona to our event because: She fits in our target group.

An example of why Burning Man would be a good fit for our persona is: She is a single mom and loves to attend festivals, but a lot of festivals do not allow children (anyone under 18). Burning Man does allow all children. So if she would attend Burning Man there is a possibility to take her child with her.

4.4 Empathy Map

Figure (11) clearly illustrates what our chosen persona thinks, feels, sees, hears, and does. Furthermore, it describes the persona's hopes and worries.

Figure 11

In conclusion, our persona is in need of new experiences and comfort. She would also like to meet new people and be a part of an inclusive event where her child can safely attend as well.

Chapter 5: Survey Questionnaire Analysis

5.1 Introduction

On the 29th of September 2021, we conducted a survey questionnaire on our main event to help us understand potential new brand positioning and gain insight into the event's target audience. One hundred and twenty respondents in total took part in the questionnaire. This chapter deals with the findings and ends with a conclusion about the analysis made regarding the outcome. (Please check Appendix A: page. 47 and C: page. 52 for the survey questions and formulation model).

People who go to Burning Man are generally more concerned about privacy -as told by our contact Matthew F. Reyes who works as a producer and host for the event- therefore, we had to include a privacy statement consisting of the reason for the research and how we will be utilizing the data resulting from the survey. We also provided them with one of our emails as a contact if they had any further questions.

5.2 Findings

- Brand value: Radically-inclusive

Result: The majority agree that the event is Inclusive of all people

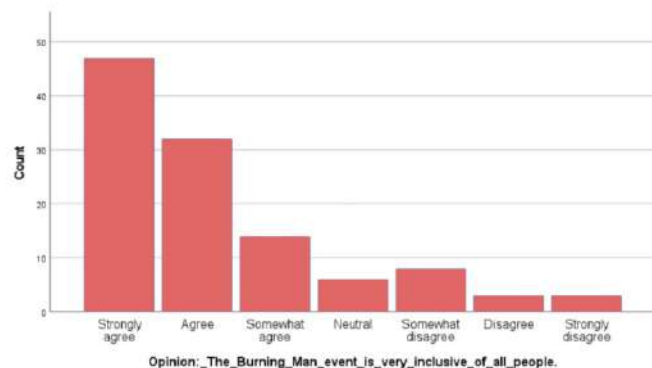

Figure 12

Using the Likert scale (Likert, 1932) we conclude that the target audience has enough knowledge to substantiate the radically inclusive value. This is one of the core values of Burning Man. See Figure (12)

- Brand value: Spiritual

Result: Majority "Other" for the religion question - diversity of religions or non- Figure (13)

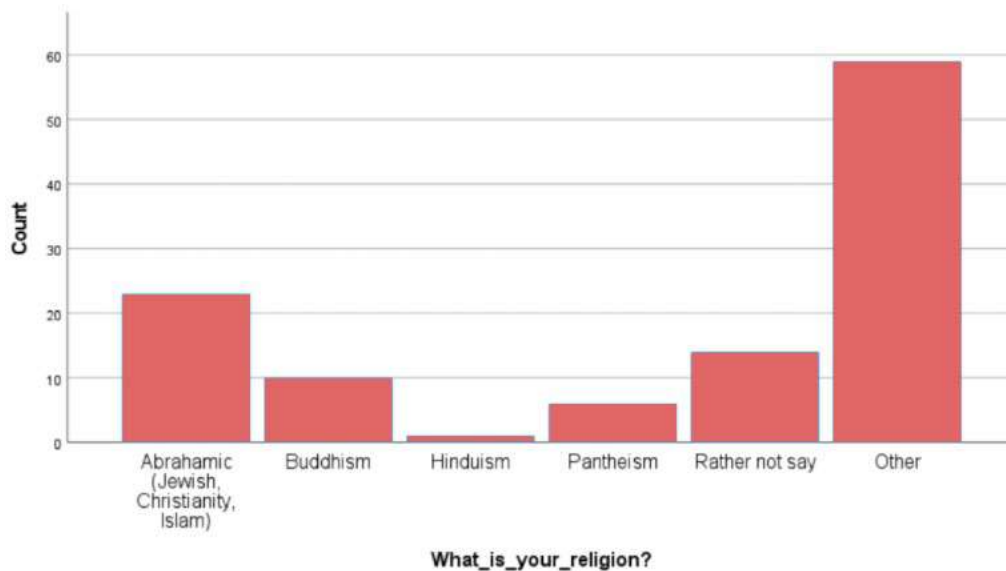

Figure 13

The figure clearly demonstrates the diversity of beliefs of the target audience. This was expected after taking a look at the different social media channels of Burning Man. The target audience of the event values spirituality (Harvey, 2017) Therefore, it is an essential brand value that should be highlighted even more to attract a larger audience.

- Brand value: Radically-inclusive

Result: The majority think children should be allowed at the event.

It was really compelling to know what our target audience thought about the presence of children at the event. A lot of events require their audience to be 18+ as with Tomorrowland and Coachella (the competitors). However, the audience of Burning Man values inclusivity, hence it is a crucial brand value that the event successfully communicates by allowing people of all ages to attend the event.

- Brand value: Innovative

Result: The larger part agrees that Burning Man is distinct in character in comparison to other events. Figure (14)

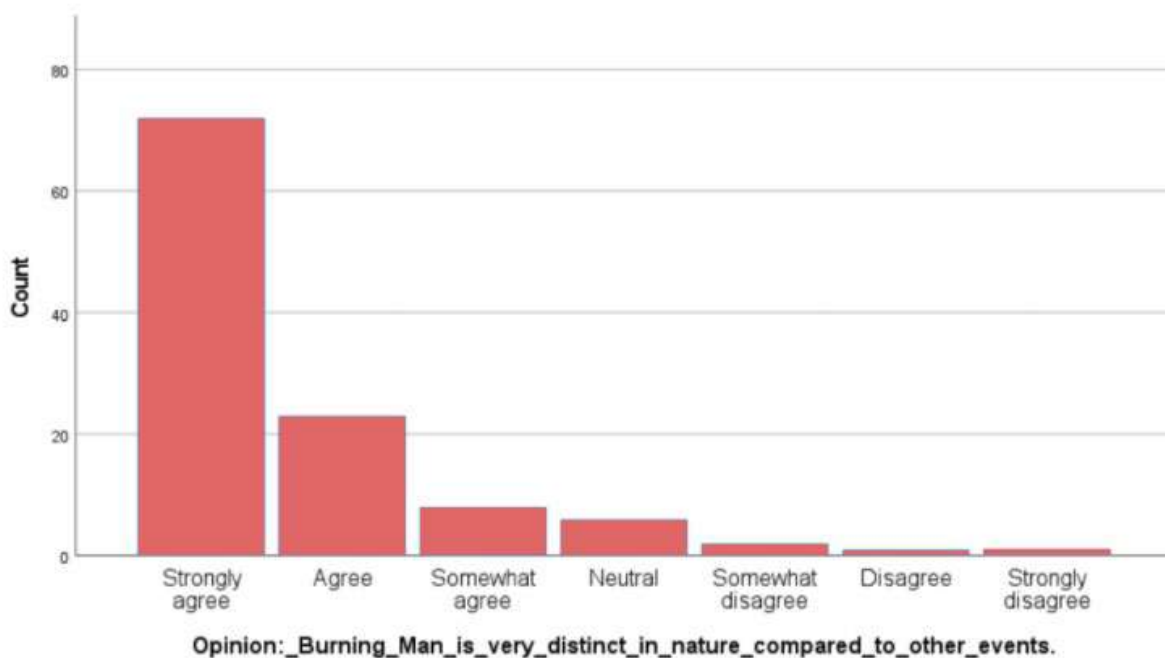

Figure 14

According to Culture & Creativity journal “Burning Man is more than just a multicultural festival. Everyone can get a unique experience here” (Top Amazing Facts about Burning Man, 2019). The greater part of our target audience strongly approves that the event is unique in nature which makes it quite distinct from the competitors.

- Brand value: Radically-inclusive

Result: Majority haven’t been discriminated against at the event.

The data demonstrate that indeed the brand value is visible to the target audience “Over the last year, Burning Man Project has taken concrete steps to advance conversations about, and policies and projects related to Radical Inclusion, Diversity, & Equity (R.I.D.E.).” (Project, 2021).

5.3 Other Findings

- Age groups target audience. Figure (15)

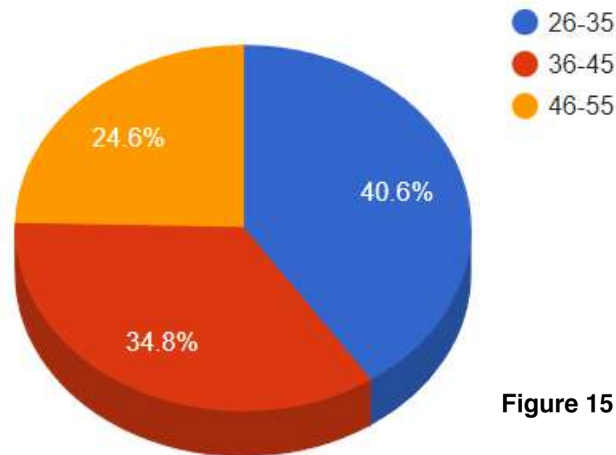

Figure 15

- Majority are located in North America, Europe came in 2nd.
- More males attend the event than females according to the survey results.
- The majority have visited in the period 2015-2019.
- Social media use (Figure 16)

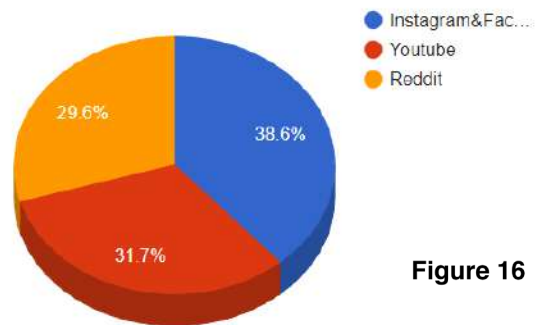

Figure 16

- The majority would like to visit the festival in the next 5 years.
- The greater part answered “No” to more safety regulations needed in regards to drugs at the festival. However, a lot of people think that drugs should be legal in order to come up with better regulations.

5.4 Conclusion

Considering all of the data, Burning Man does live up to its brand values. This can be seen through the results of the survey alongside the various articles published about the event. However, there is -without a doubt- always room for improvement, that's what we will be exploring in the chapters to come.

Analysis

This new analysis includes a summary focusing on brand values and media use and a comparison with Chapter 4 findings.

According to Chapter 5: Survey Questionnaire Analysis, the core brand values of Burning Man are radically inclusive, spiritual, and innovative. The vast majority of individuals concur that the event welcomes all participants of all ages, unlike other events that require an audience of 18 years old or older. The vast majority of the participants in the survey expressed never having been discriminated against at the event. The conclusion here is that the target audience is knowledgeable enough to support the value of the radical inclusivity of Burning Man. The greater part of the target audience strongly agrees that the event's distinctive nature sets it apart from its competitors, which demonstrates the innovative brand value of the event. Furthermore, the survey results affirm the diversity of beliefs among the Burning Man target audience, highlighting the spiritual brand value of Burning Man.

According to the findings from the survey (see 5.3 Other Findings, Figure 16), the most actively used platforms among the target audience of Burning Man are Facebook and Instagram (38.6%), and they are less active on Youtube (31.7%) and Reddit (29.6%), respectively. Males are more likely than females to use Facebook, Instagram, Reddit, and YouTube, according to the table in Chapter 9. The survey's conclusion is that there are more males who actively use Burning Man's social media platforms (see Chapter 9.2 Analysis, Figure 18).

Chapter 6: Marketing Communication Objectives

6.1 Introduction

This chapter deals with classifying the marketing communication goals of Burning Man. We will be tackling what we wish to accomplish with the desired communication and whether it affects the familiarity and demeanor of the target audience towards the event. Moreover, we will be highlighting which brand values should be more present in the communication. All objectives are formulated using the SMART method (Doran, 1981).

Each objective starts with a SMART formulated goal and further context on the motive.

6.2 Objectives

A. Brand value: radically-inclusive

Get the right identity across by making a better statement on their website and other dedicated communication channels to get the target audience to have a better understanding of the event's nature in order to get more people to attend eventually in 2022

People tend to be confused when it comes to identifying what type of event Burning Man is, therefore they may not know whether they are welcomed at the event or if it's meant for them. On the Burning Man website, they tend to describe the event as a "project". This is very confusing to people and they may choose not to go because they are still not sure about the nature of the event (Magister, 2011) therefore, we think it is necessary to make a better statement about the event either directly on their homepage or through dedicated social media channels.

B. Brand value: community-based

Make a clearer announcement illustrating that the event is all about the community by showing examples of the various different camps they have on-site in order to reach the target audience in 2022

One of the main target audience groups to the event is community lovers (Stellar, 2014) hence, it is essential that the event makes better communication clarifying all the different types of communities; for instance the bike repair camp, spiritual healing camps...etc. This will attract more community lovers to join the event.

C. Brand value: creative

Increase their social media and or web exposure following by either creating new media channels or create a documentary about the event to help it be properly be presented to the target audience showing the various creative aspects and events besides different types of art that take place to gain more visitors in 2022

Burning Man has various creative aspects to it, especially since it allows people to demonstrate their talents and artistic capabilities (Madsen, 2020) therefore it is important to get that message across their social media in order not only to increase exposure but also to attract creative minds from all around the world to attend the event.

6.3 Conclusion

The event does live up to its brand values, which was also to be noticed after obtaining the survey results (see the previous chapter) however, we believe there is always room for improvement. Burning Man should work on getting its identity across, communicate better with the target audience, and increase the event's exposure. We will dive into that deeper in the next chapters.

Chapter 7: Marketing Communication Strategy - New Positioning

7.1 Introduction

In this chapter, we'll be talking about marketing communication strategy and new positioning. We have written recommendations based on the objectives. And came up with new ideas for a new positioning for Burning Man. Following that, we'll be talking about the risks of a new strategy for Burning Man

7.2 Recommendations Based On Objectives

1. Get their identity across to get more people to attend the event. For example, Make better communication with the target audience about the identity of Burning Man. Is it a festival /a project/ what type of an event is it? On Burning Man's website, they tend to use the word "project"

Burning man has been portrayed as a project/ annual event and not a festival but yet festival-goers call it a festival. This shows that they tend to lack marketing exposure & putting out their mission statement. One way as to how they can improve this is the use of highly interactive social media that is full of active and young adults.

2. Make a clearer statement about their brand value: Community-based.

Burning Man's statement is short and simple as all event statements should Be. The founder of the event created the ten principles which should be familiar for everyone but yet it is not. The reason is that it's not portrayed on social media as much as it should be, I would suggest using those 10 principles more often on social media platforms, which would give an exact idea as to what the statement brand value is.

3. Increase their social media and or web exposure/following.

Burning man has very little social media exposure. They could improve this by marketing their logo on various products and sell them for exposure/charity work! The issue here is that burning man's funding is not that high & their motto is to never trade currencies or sell products. If they start implementing products via social media and marking it as charity work, their name and event would spread out more and interactions would grow dramatically.

7.3 New Positioning

“The business world is under pressure to sell and sell more. This perspective is the antithesis of the Burning Man experience, where there is no exchange of money. So, what are people spending and offering? One word says it all: value.” (O, 2015).

At Burning Man, nobody buys anything. Festival-goers spend a week trading goods. Their success is directly proportional to what they offer. So, what does value look like when there's no exchange of money? The best part about Burning Man's marketing strategy is that they invest a lot in the experience and the moment. This is a smart strategy to have recurring customers who come back annually to relive the experience that they got from last time. Burning man does not spend a lot of money on its marketing & the succeeding event + having more & more event-goers every year says everything. We still feel like they should decrease their ticket price and make it more “available for everyone” as they already claim it to be. After all the event-goers post so many pictures and videos or bring DIY projects back that they self-advertise automatically on social media. There are a couple of things which they can do or improve when the event is not active to promote it, for example, having light shows or putting all the structures/projects out on display in different locations/museums around the world to get customers intrigued into finding out what Burning Man stands for.

7.4 New Positioning: Risks

Our new positioning can have risks: Burning Man is all about the experience itself and the mystery behind it. What if sharing those experiences and projects on social media and museums will affect the mystery behind the event. There is a possibility that people become interested and want to find out more about Burning Man, but there is also a possibility that people don't want to attend anymore. Because they have seen what it is like on social media etc. So perhaps not giving Burning Man any more marketing/promotion. Is the promotion the event actually needs.

7.5 New Positioning: Opportunities

Burning Man ofcourse gains new opportunities to expand their target audience. They also gain the opportunity to share for example: artwork that has been shown at the event. In that way they can interest and intrigue people to get to know more about Burning Man.

Since the event gained a non-profit organization status (2012) the new positioning helps Burning Man live up to its charitable image. This is one important opportunity since the event has been undergoing negative media coverage, stating that the event is losing its "for everyone" stance because the ticket prices are on the rise and better treatment and facilities are wildly more available for the monetary-rich individuals (Pierpoint, 2019).

By reducing prices and providing the right target audience with community ticket grants, this gives Burning Man the big opportunity of changing the narrative in the negative media coverage regarding skepticism to the event's non-profit organization and the radically-inclusive brand value.

7.6 Conclusion

In conclusion, Burning Man can change a few things about its strategy. The event claims to be very inclusive and should be "available for everyone", but the prices of their tickets are still very expensive and out of budget for the lower class. That's one of the many reasons why we think they should reduce their ticket prices.

Burning Man doesn't spend a lot of money on Marketing. And they could change that as well, but that may be at the cost of the mystery Burning Man has. And people wanting to experience the event themselves. We recommend them using their current sponsor and partner Sothebys.

During the pandemic non profits struggled to stay afloat the market and in the world and one of them was Burning Man. Sothebys is one of the largest brokers of fine arts, jewelry and collectibles. Thus they have decided to collaborate with The Burning Man project to raise funds for the exceptional artists that the project consists of. One way they could raise funds for the project is to make the artists recreate the art they display at the project site itself as in NFT (Non fungible tokens) and sell them for the fund raiser to keep the artists and project alive! We also had a suggestion for a Netflix documentary about Burning Man and to include a fundraiser but that would not be easy to execute. To summarize Burning Man does need sponsors and money for them to continue their project and lots of creative ways can be used to fund their artists and help the community out!

Chapter 8: Communication Concept

8.1 Introduction

Based on the marketing strategy, this chapter deals with establishing new communication concepts. These new concepts will later on be featured in the instruments of communication that will be utilized.

8.2 The concepts

A. Brand Value: Creative

There are a lot of creative activities taking place at Burning Man, our target audience who are interested in everything creative would probably appreciate having such a slogan for the event. Creativity is about the exploration of different concepts and letting ourselves "get lost" into the unknown.

B. Brand Value: Community-based

Burning Man is community-based, and the attendees (Burners) like to help each other whenever someone needs help. Helping each other is necessary for surviving difficult conditions and building relationships. Our target audience who are looking forward to experiencing the community might like this slogan.

C. Brand Value: Spiritual

According to the conducted survey results, Burning Man is very diverse in beliefs. Moreover, lots of people go there to discover true spirituality and soul (Harvey 2017) hence "find your true self" could be a very appropriate slogan to attract the target audience.

D. Brand Value: Radically-inclusive

Burning Man is radically inclusive, anyone may be a part of Burning Man. This slogan communicates the message that everyone can attend Burning Man and together we're better. It might attract the target audience who want to be accepted in a big community.

E. Brand Value: Innovative/Creative

Burning Man is unusual – even unique. The mystery and unknown of the Burning man attract people to attend and explore since they can only understand it by being there. Stimulated/ adventurous type of target audience who are interested in exploring the unknown might be attracted by this slogan.

8.3 Conclusion

After all, the event does live up to its brand values, that's why there could be numerous effective communication concepts that could potentially increase target audience attendance and or complement the event's image.

Chapter 9: Media Mix

9.0 Introduction

In this chapter, we will be talking about how Burning Man could use adjustment in its current media mix strategy. Figure (17) below shows the importance of web vs. social media in distributing info regarding the event, taken from “Mirror and Shadow: Social Media in the Burning Man Community” report (2012) by Aveline, Dawn.

“Most responses describing how the Web is important simply emphasized the aspect of information dissemination about Burning Man to a wider audience beyond the community.” (Dawn, 2012).

9.1 What did we do to reach Burning Man's audience?

In order to reach the right audience whose answers will add accuracy to the results of the survey, we had to distribute the survey on Burning Man's dedicated official social media channels and fan-based communities. Reddit, Facebook groups and Discord are the right platforms to use when wanting to locate Burning Man previous attendees and enthusiasts.

9.2 Analysis

Through the results of our survey and (figure 12), we understand that Burning man communicates and spreads information to people with its own websites more compared to the social media platforms. For example, most of the active followers of Burning Man are on Burning Man's official website, Reddit, and Facebook.

9.2.1 Cross Tabulation: Social Media x Gender

We used SPSS to analyze and better understand the data collected by our survey. This table (Figure 18) is a cross-tabulation containing data about Social Media platforms used by male and female respondents who attended or are interested in Burning Man.

Social Media Platform	Male	Female	Total
Facebook/Instagram	68%	51%	66%
Reddit	60%	46%	24%
YouTube	60%	58%	10%
Total	65	48	113

Figure 18

Unlike other festivals, Burning Man doesn't have a huge marketing budget or sponsors. Regarding that, one of the effective strategies Burning Man can use to promote itself is to make a documentary about Black Rock City and post it on Netflix. The stories and the culture might attract new customers and followers. They can prepare light shows or put all the structures/projects out on display in different locations/museums around the world to get customers intrigued into finding out what Burning Man stands for.

9.2.2 Cross Tabulation: Religion x Age Group

Figure D demonstrates results from the survey questionnaire regarding the question “What is your religion?” and compares it with the age groups of the respondents ages; eighteen to twenty-five, twenty-six to thirty-five, thirty-six to forty-five, forty-six to fifty-five and ages sixty-five-plus. 109 total respondents to this question. The reasoning behind this question is to see whether the target groups of Burning Man are diverse in beliefs or belong to the same one. This would help us comprehend if the event is radically inclusive and/or is actually meant for everyone or only specific types of individuals holding similar or mutual beliefs. The outcome was that the target audience is actually very variant in beliefs which meant that the event identity is universal and not dedicated for a specific community/ideology for instance.

"What is your Religion"	Age 18-25	Age 26-35	Age 36-45	Age 46-55	Age 56-65	Age 65+	Total
Abrahamic	13%	17.4%	26.1%	21.7%	17.4%	4.3%	23
Buddhism	0%	50%	10%	20%	0%	10%	9
Hinduism	100%	0%	0%	0%	0%	0%	1
Pantheism	0%	33.3%	0%	16.7%	16.7%	33.3%	6
Rather not say	14.3%	35.7%	14.3%	14.3%	14.3%	0%	13
Other	5.1%	27.1%	30.5%	15.3%	13.6%	5.1%	57
Total	9	32	27	19	15	7	109

Figure D

Around 30 percent of the 36 to 45 age group participants identified as ‘Other’ when answering the question what their religion was. As a whole, this information helped us understand the diversity of beliefs among the Burning Man audience. This was important since spiritual is one of brand values of Burning Man and reviewing the results for this question we concluded that people from all different religions and beliefs would attend the event and that the audience did not perceive belong to one or two religions or had mutual beliefs necessarily, which shows that the event is made for everyone and match up as well with the radically-inclusive brand value of Burning Man.

9.2.3 Cross Tabulation: “..visited Burning Man between 2015-2019?” x Gender

Figure E highlights the outcome of the question “Have you visited the Burning Man event in the period 2015 to 2019?” and compares it with the genders of the respondents. This assists us with understanding whether there is a big gender-gap among the visitors of Burning Man which if there is, would then have to be something that needs to be implemented in the new positioning to reduce the gender-gap and ensure that the festival is diverse and not meant for a specific gender.

“Have you visited Burning Man in the period 2015-2019?”	Yes	No	Total
Males	67.2%	32.8%	64
Females	62.8%	37.2%	43
Total	70	37	107

Figure E

The results indicate that there is no big gender-gap among the attendees of the event. This, of course, could be a result of the distribution of the survey. Perhaps the Reddit and Facebook Groups where the survey was distributed had more male members than females for instance which does not necessarily mean less female audience attend the event. This would need further investigation and a bigger Burning Man platform where more females are members to make sure the data is accurate. In conclusion, in our survey of a total of one-hundred-twenty participants there is no noticeable big gender-gap.

We will dive into more gender comparison analysis in the next 9.2.4 and 9.2.5 cross-tabulations in order for us to get better insight regarding whether there is a gender-gap among the attendees of the event.

9.2.4 Cross Tabulation: Continent x Gender

Figure F shows participants belonging to different continents and compared with their gender(s). This question assisted us with further investigation with regards to the gender-gap among the attendees. Furthermore, this cross-tabulation could indicate whether the attendees come from a specific continent or are diverse. However, since the survey was distributed mainly among English speakers it is sensible why the data shows more participants -87 in total- are located in North America.

"Which continent are you located in?"	Male	Female	Other	Rather not say	Total
Africa	100%	0%	0%	0%	3
Antarctica	100%	0%	0%	0%	1
Asia	0%	0%	0%	0%	0
Australia	50%	50%	0%	0%	2
Europe	57.9%	42.1%	0%	0%	19
North America	55.2%	37.9%	3.4%	3.4%	87
South America	0%	100%	0%	0%	1
Rather not to say	0%	0%	0%	0%	0
Total	64	43	3	3	113

Figure F

The majority of the respondents indicated that they were located in North America and Europe. For more accurate survey results, the survey could have been distributed in multilingual Burning Man communities however those were hard to find because of the language barrier. Furthermore, no noticeable gender gap. This means gender-bias in the communication in order to achieve gender diversity at Burning Man is not essential in the new position campaign.

9.2.5 Cross Tabulation: “..like to visit Burning Man in the next 5 years?” x Gender

Figure G is expanding on further investigation on the gender-gap among Burning Man attendees. We proposed the question “Given the chance would you visit the event in the next 5 years?” and compared that information with the genders of the respondents. In total, eighty-six participants confirmed their interest in attending the event in the next five years without having a big noticeable gender-gap between males and females.

“Given the chance, would you like to visit Burning Man in the next 5 years?”	Yes	Maybe	No	I don’t know	Total
Male	78.1%	12.5%	4.7%	4.7%	64
Female	74.4%	16.3%	9.3%	0%	43
Other	66.7%	0%	33.3%	0%	3
Rather not to say	66.7%	0%	33.3%	0%	3
Total	86	15	9	3	113

Figure G

The majority expressed interest in attending the event which is a positive outcome. The new positioning will not include an emphasis on a specific gender since the data generated from the conducted survey does not demonstrate having a big gender-gap among the participants/attendees.

9.3 Conclusion

Burning Man could create their own video-sharing platform similar to any video-sharing platform like YouTube, Tik Tok, Vimeo. It could be named "Burners" for instance. On the platform, people share videos of old & new content they film/ed at burning man. The platform helps users create clear sections and understanding for each type of community (also for the different types of camps there) at Burning Man so people can easily find/organize the topics they're interested in.

They can conduct museum gatherings where people can have VR experiences of Burning man. There could be exhibitions of some pictures and exhibits like the tools they used and clothing they wore at Burning Man. They can also print books with the best stories that happen at Burning Man.

Chapter 10: Conclusions

10.1 Introduction

The People are what makes Burning Man stick to its brand values. We can prove this from the 11 messages we received from Elliot Naess who was born in Oslo, Norway, and later moved to the US.

Whether Burning Man is deemed a “brand” or not could be answered in many ways. Burning Man's "positioning" is idealistic, as opposed to commercial, and probably unique.

If we look at Burning Man from the outside it does seem like a brand that is making a monetary profit. However, the stories told by Elliot Naess explain that there are many active communities at Burning Man of people who are willing to help without gaining anything in return but solely seeing others be happy.

In conclusion of our research and the data that we have gathered, we gained information that we didn't even know existed before. The most important data that we found out was the survey results, 80% of the event-goers' so-called “burners” gave us an insight into the Burning Man and gave us statistics that helped gather real-time data on what the event is about and what their brand value is. 63.7% have recently been to mass gatherings and some of them gave us close insights into what they do at the event. Not only did we make a conclusion that Burning Man is heavily inclusive and original when it comes to creative events, but we learned a lot from the burners that had talked to us privately. It was clearly obvious that we misinterpreted what the event was about from the beginning but based on more data being collected and the verified information that we gathered, we modified our survey a lot and made it more accurate and logical.

10.2 Examples

Here are a few examples of information we gathered. In our research about the target audience for Burning Man. We found that the majority of visitors are male. We found that in our survey to be true, above 60% of the survey participants were male.

In the feedback we received from our survey participants, we found out that they don't see Burning Man as a festival but more as a social gathering, an event that is all about community and unity.

Our correspondent, Elliot Naess (68 years old) who has missed attending the event only once since 2011, mentioned that Burning Man used to be held with the intention of profit in mind. However, nowadays he deems it a non-profit foundation although even when it was commercial, they never did try to sell them anything more than the price of the ticket (Naess, 2021).

"This is what we do at Burning Man. For one week a year. 70,000 people invent, build, bring, assemble, and operate the entire "Black Rock Amusement Park", and take turns riding on each others' roller-coasters and merry-go-rounds. We also serve the food and pick up the trash. Whenever we see something that needs doing, we do it. Ourselves. For each other. At Burningmanland." (Naess, 2021).

Research Questions Conclusions 10.3

In Chapter 1: Event Selection and Research Question Formulation we proposed one central and 4 sub questions. This section deals with our findings. 10.3.1 is our central question and the sub questions are media exposure 10.3.2, attendance 10.3.3, identity 10.3.4.

10.3.1 How can Burning Man improve their event in regards to media exposure, inclusivity, and safety in order to gain more visitors?

Burning Man can improve their event in many different ways: safety wise Burning Man could be more strict. They could for example: have serious consequences for drug users at the event. When you get caught doing drugs at the event, you are not allowed back to the event for a decent amount of time.

Burning Man can change their marketing strategy in a way it affects their media exposure. They can post more on social media, give out interviews about the event: in the interviews Burning Man fans can share their experiences at the event. They also can focus on the art exposure at the event, in that way they might gain a more inclusive and diverse target audience.

10.3.2 How can we get Burning Man more social media exposure?

Burning Man is an event that focuses on the experience. For them it is all about spirituality, art and self-expression. They could also share this through their social media. The event can show and share stories of past experiences at the event on their Instagram etc.. They can make people curious throughout that exposure and make them more interested in the event.

If Burning Man starts to share these stories frequently, their social media exposure will grow.

10.3.3 How can Burning Man gain more visitors?

Burning Man can gain more visitors by updating their marketing strategy. They can promote the event more. They can do this at places where they can attract the intended target audience. Places like famous art museums where the artists of Burning Man can portray their sculptures and light constructions, this will help people understand what the project is all about and what a person can experience once they actually visit the event. Cyber artists can re-create the project in virtual reality and have people visit and enjoy a virtual tour of the project detailed and fully recreated in VR, this gives a unique experience and definitely attracts a bigger audience in a swifter way.

10.3.4 How can the event's identity be better laid out for the target audience?

If Burning Man shares stories of past events, they can give the target audience an impression of the experiences. In that way they can see the event's characteristics and might identify with them. Taking and creating after movies from each event are crucial to expose the project's Identity and can be posted to multiple famous social platforms for the intended target audience to see.

10.4 Final Conclusion

Finally, Through making analysis, we understand that Burning Man's opportunity is the freedom of having unlimited creativity of self-expression. Burning Man/Black Rock City is a place where people can learn and overcome themselves. Meeting the diversity of people and surviving the difficult conditions might create unique experiences and change their personal views on life. In Burning Man/Black Rock City people enjoy giving more than receiving, this gift-based society creates a community that feels like family. The organizers of Burning Man used these ten principles to determine a conscious society: Radical Inclusion, Gifting, Decommodification, Radical Self-reliance, Radical self-expression, Communal Effort, Civic Responsibility, Leaving no trace, Participation, and Immediacy. (The ten principles of Burning Man) These principles created four interconnected program areas: Arts, Culture, Civic Involvement, and Education.
