Description of The Music Genre

Genre: Indie Pop

The main genre we can put Jacob Drescher's music in is Indie Pop. This genre is mainly inspired by 60's pop music, Power Pop and Post-Punk. Artists within this genre usually tend to have a simplistic approach to their music to create a melodic, lighthearted sound. These artists mainly use Rock instruments such as drums, guitar, bass, and vocals of course. Sometimes an artist may deviate from this by using electronics, strings, or the piano. Indie Pop started to become popular in the mid-'80s in the United States. This resulted in a lot of Indie Pop bands popping up and Indie Pop specialized record labels. Indie Pop has multiple sub-genres such as Bedroom Pop, Indie Rock, Indie Alternative, Acoustic, etc. Main representatives in this genre are for example Lana Del Rey, Bon Iver, Lorde, M83, and Gotye. (Indie Pop, n.d.).

Sub-genre: Bedroom pop

The sub-genre Jacob would be placed in, also according to himself is Bedroom Pop. This genre derives from Indie Pop and became popular in the 2010s. This genre is mainly used by singer-songwriters who create intimate and authentic music out of their own homes, or at least outside of the traditional studio environment. This genre might feel warm, hazy or sleepy, or even psychedelic and nostalgic. Inspired by Hypnagogic Pop and has some elements of lo-fi recording aesthetics and has some influences from Soul and Jazz, or sometimes elements of the 90's alternative music scene can be used, like the reverbed sounds of Dream Pop or the nocturnal atmosphere of Trip Hop. Bedroom Pop uses small elements of these genres to create a more accessible sound, this genre focuses on songs from a personal and/or confessional point of view mostly sung in hushed tones to create intimate atmospheres and laid-back energy to match the music.

The term Bedroom Pop has been used for decades to describe all home recording or DIY artists but only became a distinguished musical style in the 2010s with more and more artists using the genre which helped Bedroom Pop become an even more distinctive sound. Bedroom Pop artists usually put their music on platforms such as Youtube or SoundCloud and create a following through there. (Bedroom Pop, n.d.)

50% of all Gen Zers and Millennials best connect with personal music that shares deep and authentic feelings like loneliness or sadness. (Everything You Wanted to Know About Gen Z [But Were Afraid to Ask], 2019). Therefore, these two generations are the most important stakeholders for this genre, along with the artists themselves of course. Other stakeholders for this genre could be social media platforms such as Instagram, TikTok, or Facebook, music streaming sites such as Spotify or Deezer, publishers, record labels, live performances, and everyone involved in that. (Wunderlich, 2020).

Bedroom Pop is an easy genre to create and therefore accessible to almost every artist out there. Artists can nowadays, thanks to technological developments, create, assemble, and post music without ever having to leave their houses. Therefore, giving more and more beginning artists the chance to put their music out to the listening world. (Power, 2019).

Bedroom Pop

Trends and developments:

Spotify

By the end of 2017, Spotify's editorial team decided to make the "bedroom pop playlist". This decision was made after Spotify's John Stein and editorial teams took notice of a rise in DIY artists in the middle of June of 2017. It was when Clairo's "Pretty Girl" music video went viral on YouTube and other social media, that Spotify was reassured and decided to create the bedroom pop playlist in January of 2018. This playlist included artists like Clairo, Roy Blair, Cosmo Pyke, Kevin Abstract, Cuco, Rex Orange County, Beabadoobee, and many more (Skelton, 2020).

"I have a love-hate relationship with the term 'bedroom pop,'" says Clairo. "I definitely understand where it comes from but people have been writing and recording music in their home studios for years. I guess what makes this wave of artists different or special is the fact we've created a community among ourselves." (Skelton, 2020).

Clairo never meant to make bedroom pop-sounding music, just like almost every other artist of this genre, there were just working with what they had. That's why a lot of so-called "bedroom pop" artists don't like the term bedroom pop. But whether you call it bedroom pop or not, some common developments run through the genre.

COVID-19

The pandemic, as we know, turned society upside down. However many independent artists took this opportunity to lock in and create their art (Mulligan & Jopling, 2020). The pandemic also helped drive some developments and trends in the music industry (i.e. the rise of indie artists, live streaming, TikTok).

The pandemic might have made artists go on breaks but on the other hand helped accelerate creativity and help push the indie music sector into the mainstream (The Hindu, 2021). A bunch of new artists surfaced all over social media from all over the world releasing music from their bedrooms, further embracing the aforementioned DIY attitude.

According to a survey conducted by MIDiA Research, 256 (68.3%) out of 376 artists spend more time writing and making music during the various lockdowns (see figure 1). The results of the survey were far from negative, artists continued to record and release new music, thus proving that the time has been fruitful for creatives (Mulligan & Jopling, 2020).

TikTok

We can see that in the last couple of years Bedroom Pop has thrived massively on the video-sharing platform TikTok. With this trend, artists put their songs out on this platform and if it takes off it's only a matter of time before the song becomes popular and can be heard on radios all over the world. (Ziegler, 2021).

Livestreams

According to the founder of Rude Record, Ilich Rausa, Instagram live and twitch streams have been trending among indie artists. The purpose of the live streams is fan interaction and fan donations. What was once used by artists and labels as a necessity during the lockdowns, are now being used as a way to keep fans informed and connected (Zarczynski, 2021).

Growth and value creation possibilities:

To determine the growth possibilities within the genre, a successful bedroom pop artist like Rex Orange County will be used as the main example for success within the genre.

Rex Orange County, real name Alex O'Connor, is a 23-year-old English singer and songwriter with 2017 hit singles like "Best Friend", "Sunflower" and "Loving Is Easy". Collectively these 3 singles are sitting with over a billion streams on Spotify alone, thus giving Rex Orange County the hitmaker status within the genre. Rex Orange County has since then collaborated with iconic producers and artists like Benny Sings, Frank Ocean, and Tyler, The Creator (Kasambala, 2022). Rex Orange County has released a total of 4 albums and has toured worldwide countless times as support but also as the headliner. Rex also releases new merch every album drop, merchandise like hoodies, shirts, track pants, beanies, zines, box sets, rings, socks, hats, phone cases, belts, vinyl, cassettes, and cd's (Rex Orange County Store, n.d.).

Rex Orange County currently has 14.61 million monthly Spotify streams, 3.82 million Spotify followers, and 1.78 million Instagram followers (Chartmetric, 2022).

In conclusion, Rex Orange County's success within the genre is what most bedroom pop artists can use as an example for the highest level of success in bedroom pop. Furthermore, using Rex Orange County as an indication for the possibilities in value creation, one could observe and conclude that there are positive possibilities like the growth in followers and streams (Social media platforms and streaming services), but also a lot of possibilities and opportunities in the sale of merchandise, Collaboration, and performances.

Market share:

The market share for “bedroom pop” was difficult to track due to the versatility of sounds that the genre explores, however, the market share for “indie” will be explored and used as a reference for the market share.

Indie music had a total of 23.1 billion dollar recorded revenue in 2020 with an annual growth of 7% despite the global pandemic. In this same year Indie music had 14.2-billion-dollar streaming music revenue with an annual growth of 20%. This genre represents 5.1% of artists direct global market share. (Houghton, 2021).

Major labels have rooted themselves as important players in the indie industry by distributing independent labels (directly or via distribution arms). Meaning that revenue goes via the major's account, so their value in the market is inflated by how well independent labels (independent labels that use major labels for distribution) are doing. Therefore the way to dissect the market is looking at it using the ownership basis.

Research conducted by Midia Research suggests that 66.1% of music released on a distribution basis are from major labels, and 33.9% from independent labels (includes independently released by artists). On an ownership basis, major labels are 56.9% of the market, while independent releases are 43.1%, an addition of 9.2% (Mulligan, 2021).

Success Criteria

Number of streams on Spotify

Amounts of streams are important for every music genre, therefore also for Bedroom Pop. People tend to have presumptions about music with lesser streams, even though that song might still be really good. Having a greater amount of streams will get artists more following. Having songs put into popular playlists on Spotify could help to get those extra streams. (Prey, 2020)

Popularity on social media platforms

Bedroom Pop is a genre fueled by online platforms and therefore it's easy for us listeners to access good music through social media. Social media platforms are also an important place for artists to build and connect with their fandom. Seeing as Bedroom Pop is such a personal genre this should not be overlooked (Roos, 2020).

Views on TikTok

TikTok is one of the most important success criteria for the Bedroom Pop genre. Many new artists breakthrough on TikTok or use the platform to promote new songs. With 5.2 billion views Bedroom Pop is one of the most important genres of the app (TikTok, 2022).

According to a Vogue article titled "How TikTok Helped Legitimize Angsty Bedroom Pop", TikTok was one of the core movements that helped with the development of bedroom pop (Victor, 2021). Therefore, an artist's activity and stats on TikTok are important for their growth and success within the genre.

Views on Youtube

Many Bedroom Pop artists start their careers by posting covers or their written songs on Youtube. Therefore, having a large number of views on Youtube videos is an important success criterion for this genre. Due to the Youtube algorithm, some Bedroom Pop artists even gain thousands of views on their songs every day (Roos, 2020).

Awards

One of today's biggest artists Billie Eilish and her brother Finneas won a Grammy for their Bedroom Pop song 'Bad Guy'. In their Grammy acceptance speech, Finneas (2020) says "We just make music in a bedroom together. We still do that, this is for all of the kids who are making music in their bedroom today. You're going to get one of these."

Live performances

Now that life is finally getting back to the way it used to be so are normal activities we missed out on, such as concerts. More and more Bedroom Pop artists are going on tours or performing at big festivals such as Coachella. Therefore, live performances are also big success criteria for the Bedroom Pop genre (Roos, 2020).

Description of The Artist

Who is Jacob Drescher?

Jacob Drescher is a 21-year-old music student at Inholland Haarlem. He comes from Limburg but nowadays lives in Amsterdam. He started his music career by picking up the guitar during his first college year and posting covers on his Instagram, he gained a lot of new fans through this. Today he writes, records, and produces the songs he makes by himself but he does the final mixing with a group of friends. He has also been part of a band for a couple of months and they are preparing to perform with the band this coming April (Drescher, personal communication, February 10, 2022).

Discography

Jacob currently has 4 singles out. His debut single "Shadow" was released on the 17th of April 2020 and it currently has 173.893 streams on Spotify, thus making this track Jacob's most popular single. His second single "Pavement Love" was released on the 13th of August 2020 and it currently has 65.518 streams on Spotify (his second most-streamed song). His third single "It's a wrap" got released on the 1st of October 2020 (3.673 streams on Spotify) and his latest single "where the ends meet" on the 19th of March 2021 (17.134 streams on Spotify).

Relevant stakeholders

The most important stakeholders for any artist are the songwriter, the publisher, the record label, and the artist himself. In this case, this is all Jacob himself. Other important stakeholders for Jacob are his listeners on the streaming platforms (i.e. Spotify, Deezer, Apple Music, etc.) he puts his music on, however, he mostly focuses on Spotify. The music streaming sites themselves are also an important stakeholder for our artist.

His social media platforms such as Instagram, but also Youtube. And also, everyone that could be involved in live performances. (Wunderlich, 2020). Specifically to Jacob, his friends are important stakeholders as well because they help him with the mix and mastering of his songs before releasing them. He also started a band recently, they only play Jacob's music and use his name as a name for the band.

Milestones

Jacob described that for him, one of the biggest milestones so far is forming his band. With this band, he wants to go on tour and focus completely on making music. The band has his own name and will be playing his own music as well. According to him, forming this band will help him get further in his career and therefore obtain other milestones in the future.

Another milestone for Jacob was the release of his first single 'Shadow'. First of all, it was a big step to release a song for the first time, and fortunately, it was very well received. It is to this day still his most listened to song with 173.893 streams on Spotify. (Drescher, personal communication, March 15, 2022).

Segmentation Criteria

Market segmentation

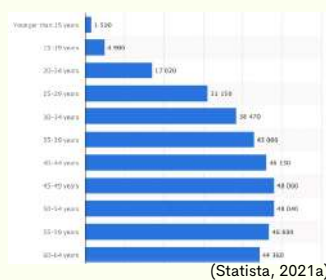

The market is divided into four segments. There are demographic, psychographic, behavioral, and geographic factors to consider. The demographic refers to the target group's age, gender, income, and all other personal information. The psychographic addresses all of the target group's needs, values, and goals, as well as everything else that relates to how the target group can fit in. The behavioral aspect refers to the target group's purchasing habits, brand interactions, and even spending habits. The geographic aspects concern the city, country, population density, as well as the target group's language (Flashman, 2022).

DEMOGRAPHIC:

Jacob is very active on the social media platforms Instagram and TikTok, according to ChartMetric. As a result, all of the details relating to the artist's actual target group are gathered on these platforms. The information about the gender and age of the audience can be found in the figures in the target group chapter of this report, figures 6 and 7.

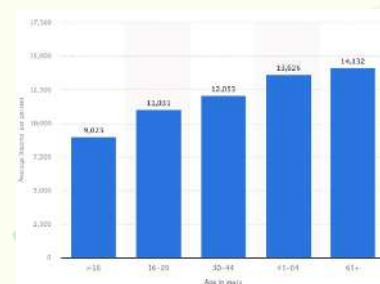

Instagram has a larger male audience than TikTok, which has a female audience of 69 percent. This strikes a balance and demonstrates that both genders are interested in his activity. In terms of age, Instagram appears to have a large audience between the ages of 18 and 25. TikTok, on the other hand, is mostly used by people between the ages of 24 and 34.

In terms of income, the audience's income can be determined by looking at the "Top Cities by Listeners" on ChartMetric and noting that the audience is concentrated primarily in Amsterdam and Madrid. Thus, by looking at net household income by country and age, one can get an idea of what the income is.

(Statista, 2021a)

This graph depicts the income per age per year in the Netherlands, with a focus on the 20–24 to 30–34 year age groups.

(Statista, 2021b)

This other graph depicts the income in Spain by age and year. Again, with an emphasis on the 16–29 and 30–44 age groups.

PSYCHOGRAPHIC:

This target group's need concerns mostly social media, being a huge thing for this generation. In fact, it is very common for people mostly under 30, to use social media such as Facebook, being the most popular one, and Instagram, TikTok, and YouTube. According to The Most Popular Social Networks of 2021 article, the most used one for influencer marketing is Instagram.

	Dec 2019	March 2021
Instagram	97%	93%
Instagram Stories	83%	83%
TikTok	16%	68%
Facebook	79%	68%
YouTube	44%	48%
Instagram Reels	-	36%
Pinterest	29%	35%
Twitter	35%	32%
Snapchat	16%	26%
Bloggs	24%	25%
Twitch	5%	13%

This table shows that Facebook declined from December 2019 to March 2021, while TikTok grew significantly over the same period. Taking that into account, it reveals that people are looking for content on those platforms, particularly Instagram and TikTok.

BEHAVIORAL:

When determining the habits of the target group, it is critical to consider their use of social media.

(Statista, 2022)

This graph depicts the 'Daily social media usage Worldwide 2012-2020' and shows that the global daily use of social media has increased over the years, indicating that the target group's habits include extensive use of social media.

GEOGRAPHIC:

The geographical aspects correspond to the target group's home country and cities. According to figure 5 of the target group chapter, half of Jacob's audience is Dutch, while the other half is in Spanish. He is attracting fans from both countries after being added to Spotify playlists in the Netherlands and Spain. Geographically, Jacob's audience remains predominantly European, which is why focusing on this area is critical to helping him grow in other European countries.

Description of The Target Group

Music will not sell without the correct audience, no matter how skilled the artist is or how compelling their art is. In the business world, failing to focus on a certain target group and attempting to accommodate everyone's tastes is a formula for catastrophe (Kortepeter, 2015). This section deals with identifying Jacob's target group to better aim his music at the right audience. Jacob describes his target audience (Figure 4) as adolescents 14-29 according to his Spotify insights, Gen Z, alternative scene, young students residing in cities who like plants and nature, living in cities, perhaps with alternative ways of living such as caravan and tiny-living (Drescher, personal communication, February 10, 2022, b).

According to Chartmetric, a platform that collects music and artist-related data from various sources (2022), Jacob's target audience is mostly located in The Netherlands, Spain, Belgium, and Germany (Figure 5).

Jacob notes that he may have a mutual target audience with artists such as Phoebe Bridgers, Laura Marling, Bruno Major, and Cavetown (2022).

"Next summer I would like to start doing more live performances and try to get to know my audience more in real life." (Jacob, 2022).

As for social media, Jacob has a total of 2,172 monthly listeners and 300 followers on Spotify, 71 YouTube subscribers, 1,238 Instagram followers, and 297 TikTok followers (Chartmetric, 2022).

According to Chartmetric (2022), Jacob has a total of 57% male and 42% female followers on Instagram and 30% male and 69% female followers on TikTok. (Figure 6)

As for the age group, the majority of Jacob's followers on Instagram and TikTok are between the ages (18-25) on average. (Figure 7)

Phoebe Bridgers' music is aimed at teenagers and young adults, and her straightforward lyrics about her depression battles are likely to resonate with any listeners who are dealing with similar issues (Crisp, 2021). That is similar to Jacob's target audience age group and also links with the topics of the lyrics Jacob writes about.

Laura Marling creates music in the genres of Indie pop, Rock, and Alternative. a Los Angeles-based singer/songwriter with a dreamy and hook-filled indie-pop heart, rose to international popularity thanks to her smart lyrical viewpoints, achingly beautiful compositions, and commanding melodies (Chartmetric, 2022).

When looking at Bruno Major's target audience, British singer-songwriter, and guitarist, according to Chartmetric (2022) the artist is most listened to on Spotify in the United States and Indonesia (Figure 8).

Robin "Robbie" Skinner, aka Cavetown, is an English singer, songwriter who creates music aimed mainly at teenagers and students (Ginsberg, 2020).

The Chartmetric Artist Score assesses an artist's overall performance across numerous platforms in comparison to all other musicians in the music business (Chartmetric, 2022). Figure 9 illustrates the different rankings of the artists. The varying Chartmetric scores of the artists are depicted in Figure 9.

Chartmetric data (2022) shows that the main language spoken by Jacob's audience is English by forty-seven percent, Dutch comes second, and German is third. (Figure 11)

Tiny houses have been regarded as a revolutionary and innovative method to address the shortage of affordable housing while also lowering living costs and reducing our carbon footprint (Wilson, 2020). Jacob has participated in initiatives such as Fridays for Future to raise awareness about environmental issues and describes people living alternative lifestyles to be a part of his target audience.

Furthermore, plant enthusiasts are also part of the target group for Jacob as he explains (Jacob, 2022). Plants have been shown to lower stress and increase mood among young people today, and they are also regarded to be more cognizant of mental health and self-care which Jacob writes about in his music. Plants have been shown to alleviate stress and boost mood in young people today. According to writer Alice Vincent, house plants have global appeal because they give "a tactile method of interacting with nature that is lost in an increasingly screen-based society." (Carabelli, 2020).

Jacob mainly writes music about mental health, growing in or out of relationships, new experiences, and growing up as a person (Jacob, 2022). Psychologist Sophie Bethune wrote in the American Psychological Association journal (2019) that according to a survey conducted by The Harris Poll in 2018 among 3,458 adults and 300 15- to 17-year-olds. More than nine out of ten Gen Z individuals (91%) indicated they've had at least one physical or emotional symptom as a result of stress, such as feeling sad or depressed (58%) or lacking interest, motivation, or energy (55 percent). Only half of Gen Zs believe they are adequately managing their stress.

Target group and value creation plan (Why does the value creation plan fit the target group?)

Social media growth

Jacob creates music in the bedroom pop genre which is currently very big on social media platforms such as Instagram and TikTok "Many bedroom pop musicians have found success starting on social media before signing with a record label" (Roos, 2020). Hence, for an artist in the same genre as Jacob, it is essential to grow on various social media platforms such as Instagram.

Merch

According to Vogue Business (2021), gen Z respondents are 27 percent more likely to shop online and purchase merchandise to support their favorite artist. Since Jacob's target audience largely fall under Gen Zs, it is a good opportunity for him to sell merch to connect with his audience, self-promote, and generate revenue especially as financing may be required for other phases of the value generation strategy.

Live streams

Livestreaming is increasingly becoming a more essential part of our daily lives, especially for the target audience of Jacob "Livestreaming is the way of the future for generation Z" (Petrocelli, 2020). Jacob already has his own unique caravan which is very fit for Livestream events which would be of benefit from multiple sides for the artist such as connecting with his audience and building a deep connection, promotion, or revenue generation.

Goals

Objective 1. Instagram

Achieve a follower count of 5.000 on Instagram.

Specific: In the interview with Jacob Drescher, he has expressed his want to grow his fanbase on Instagram. The people his target group is made up of are avid Instagram users, which is why it is a great platform to use for fanbase growth. Thus, the Instagram promotion will be used to gain more followers on the platform and expand the fanbase. The exact number that is wished to achieve is 5.000.

Measurable: The follower count of Jacob Drescher's Instagram account is easily trackable using websites such as Socialblade and Chartmetrics.

Achievable: By being more active on Instagram and using certain social media marketing strategies, it is certainly achievable to boost Drescher's follower count.

Relevant: Besides Instagram being an immensely popular social media platform, most of the artist's target group and fanbase can also be found on the platform. This creates a large sense of relevancy.

Time-bound: The goal should be achieved in 6 months. This is around the time when the artist releases their new EP.

Objective 2. Merchandise

Generate revenue, build deeper connections with the fanbase, fund Jacob's career endeavors, and boost promotion.

Specific: To generate revenue and create a strong bond with Jacob's audience and fund the various phases of the value creation plan, Jacob should sell to 1000 - 5000 people.

Measurable: The goal can be measured by the number of sold merch items, posts shared by Jacob's fans of his merch using the right hashtags, and increased overall popularity of Jacob.

Achievable: The objective is attainable since three budget options are provided: low, mid, and high, allowing Jacob to select the one that is most appropriate for his budget.

Relevant: Selling merch is a relevant objective to Jacob's value creation plan because it consists of 3 phases of which funding may be required, furthermore, it would boost audience growth and the artist's overall popularity.

Time-bound: The goal should be achieved prior to the start of the third phase of the value creation plan: caravan live session.

Objective 3. Caravan live session

Promote the new EP, build a deeper connection with fans and give something extra to the superfans.

Specific: To give Jacob's EP a great start, promoting by doing a live session is a great idea. Many artists before Jacob have done this and only grow as a result.

Measurable: By tracking how many people attended the live session, both in person and on Youtube we can measure the success of the live stream event itself. If the event is a success maybe Jacob could organize more live streaming events in the future.

Achievable: The idea of building a deeper fan connection and giving something extra to fans will be very much achieved during the caravan live session because of the attending fans Jacob can speak directly with them and give fans a sense of belonging. Also, the promotion of the EP can be achieved as well because the whole live session will revolve around the EP.

Relevant: The idea of the caravan live session is very relevant not only because it matches Jacob's ambiance and brand identity but also because it matches his target group. We will make sure the aesthetic of this event will correspond with Jacob's most important target groups such as Gen Z's and people who like nature.

Time-bound: The caravan live session is a one-time event on the day of the release of Jacob's new EP. The promotion of the live session will begin about 6 months prior in combination with the Instagram growth.

Value Creation Concepts

Introduction

The following chapter showcases the three different established value creation concepts made to boost Jacob Drescher's level of success as an artist. These three concepts have been built up in such a way that when they are performed in a specific order, they smoothly interact with one another. The success of this larger plan will be maximized if the suggested order is followed.

Value creation phase 1: Instagram growth

The first phase starts off with a plan to grow the artist's Instagram following. This can be done by setting up a posting schedule for Jacob. However, besides simply mindlessly following a schedule, we want to really engage the fans in the posted content. The schedule should not be at the expense of Jacob's authenticity and the quality of the content. We are choosing quality over quantity. A third important part of this concept is for Jacob to interact with other accounts in order to gain more awareness. The three main aspects that this concept focuses on are a posting schedule, fan engagement, and engagement with other accounts. Instagram is the best platform to use to increase Jacob's following since his target audience uses this social media quite often. For example, more than 30% of Instagram users are people between the ages of 18 and 24, who are part of the Gen Z audience that Jacob wants to attract (Statista, 2022).

Posting plan

The concept is mainly revolved around two main ideas:

- Jacob would be posting Instagram reels focusing on his plants. In these short videos, he could show how he takes care of his plants and his garden, give facts and recommendations and show all the plants he has. His genuine affinity for plants and gardening reflects back on his overall aesthetic, his social media presence, and even his merchandise. In the first meeting with the artist, he mentioned his target audience to be plant and nature lovers, which is why this concept would be a great success.
- Jacob would be consistently doing Instagram live streams for his fans. These would mostly consist of him playing music and cover songs that his fans requested. Other ideas for these live streams would be Q&As, live streaming at events, showing fans a behind-the-scenes view of how Jacob makes music, and live streaming together with another artist in the industry.

It is recommended to post two or three times a week to build a following on Instagram (McLachlan, 2022). Bi-weekly, one of these posts would be a plant-themed reel. The other weeks there would be a live stream, so the two main ideas alternate each other. The live streams, however, are not part of the number of weekly posts. They are a category of their own.

The leftover post spots will be filled by any of the following kinds of posts/reels:

- Performance/studio pictures
- A trendy aesthetic so-called 'photo dump'
- Updates on his personal life or his mindset
- A reel to tease a song he is working on
- Reels playing cover songs
- A reel containing a small vlog of what he is doing
- Giving a tour of his caravan/ studio

Many of these posts can be made in advance and be planned for when to post them, so the artist does not have to come up with ideas on the spot. To accompany these posts, they need to have good captions. Most of the time they should be short and to the point. The best length is around 138–150 characters (Newberry, 2020). However, this limit may be exceeded, as long as the story being told is interesting and relevant enough for the reader.

Another important part of the caption is hashtags. There is a maximum of 30 hashtags that can be used per post, which is a lot. 11 hashtags is a great number to start with when aiming for Instagram growth. However, this still can seem like a bit too much, which is why it is most common to use 1 to 3 hashtags per post (Newberry, 2022). For Jacob, it is important to stick to hashtags that belong to his niche, to reach his target audience. Examples of hashtags he could use are: #bedroompop, #indiepop, #lofi, #jazz, #plants, #ToolsToGrow, #caravan, #tinyliving.

The last form of content would be stories. It is best to post around two stories a day when trying to grow on Instagram (McLachlan, 2022b). These spots will mostly be filled by Jacob showing what he is doing that day and him making music alone or with friends. The casual use of polls and the occasional use of the 'questions' sticker is highly recommended to increase fan engagement.

Fan engagement

It is important for Jacob to be engaging and interacting with his fans to grow his fanbase. These are some ways he can do that:

- Ending his captions with a question to his fans
- Liking, replying, and pinning comments on his posts
- Use question and poll stickers in his stories
- Interacting with his tagged posts
- Ask fans to comment on certain songs they want him to cover, which he can play in a reel or during one of his live streams.

Engagement with other accounts

For this part, Jacob will have to interact with other accounts that are similar to him and brands/organizations he is interested in. In this way, he might get noticed by these pages and the followers of these pages might notice him in the comments and start to follow him. This happens because Jacob and the page he is commenting on have a similar target audience. This is a great way to increase his awareness and receive more followers.

The plan described surely is realistic and feasible because the artist is already using Instagram quite often now, so it should be relatively simple for him to adjust to this manner of posting. He himself has also mentioned how he wants to grow his Instagram which means that there will definitely be cooperation from him. The benefits coming from this project include increased awareness, a larger fanbase, more streams on his music, and an increase in merch sales. The approach we are taking also suits the artist very well since we are incorporating two of his favorite things (plants and music) to help him grow in his musical career while staying authentic.

This plan is definitely profitable in the long run since Jacob's Instagram following will keep growing over time using this strategy, which means he is gaining fans and these fans will listen to his music, buy his merchandise and ultimately bring the artist more and more profit and revenue. The goal for this 6-month plan is to achieve a follower count of 5.000. Until that happens, every 1.000 followers are seen as an important milestone on the road to success.

Stakeholders

As previously stated, Jacob's stakeholders are primarily the streaming platforms and social media platforms he uses. He is mostly focused on the streaming platform Spotify, which helps a lot in bringing more audience to his Instagram, for example, if he has the same name or a direct link to it. Social media, specifically Instagram and its growth are also stakeholders. He is also active on YouTube and TikTok, but his Instagram audience is much larger. As mentioned by the artist in an interview, Jacob does not have any management, he recently started a band but mostly works by himself, which means that the people he works with or himself can be considered stakeholders. However, if this Instagram growth strategy is considered and the artist hires a social media manager and a photographer, those people are also considered stakeholders in terms of matching the artist's creativity and mindset.

3 risks, how to minimize them (and legal and ethical aspects)

Focusing on only one social media platform can be a risk, which means that striking a balance between all social platforms is essential if you want to grow on social media. It is critical to reduce this risk by being active on multiple social media platforms while maintaining a focus and high quality on the one that can easily attract an audience, which in this case is Instagram.

The second risk is that Jacob does not have any management. He is also studying on the side, which means that the risk is that he may miss out on time to prepare posts, do live streams, or even keep the plan on track. It is then necessary to learn how to manage all of this and live a very organized lifestyle, or to hire someone qualified to provide some assistance and structure.

The last one that comes to mind is the ethical and legal implications of posting on social media. Indeed, as stated in the article Legal and Ethical Issues in Social Media and Pharmacy Education, "A number of basic rights arising under the US Constitution can be implicated in cases involving the use of social media – freedom of speech, search and seizure issues, right to privacy, and denial of due process." (Cain & Fink, 2010). This exemplifies the legal issues that can arise when posting on social media. The following legal issues are discussed further down in the same article: "Sometimes contexts (eg, student pharmacist, sorority sister, high school friend) overlap, and when viewed through social media, are rendered inseparable. Because of this blending of public/private lives, discussions pertaining to the ethical use of social media can quickly disintegrate into a seemingly unending web of controversies." (Cain & Fink, 2010) Posting on social media can sometimes be dangerous and cause misunderstanding or even hate. To minimize these risks, it is critical to check what you say and reserve judgment so that your message and intention are not inclusive, for example.

Value creation phase 2: Merchandise

After having started with the first phase of the value creation strategy: Instagram growth, Jacob can begin with the second phase; selling merchandise.

Introduction

The artist stated that he had previously sold merch and that he would want to continue doing so (Jacob, 2022). To come up with inspirations for merch conceptions, it is important to look at Jacob's established brand and personal identity. Jacob writes music about the topics of growing up as a person, mental health, and falling in and out of love (Jacob, 2022). Jacob owns a caravan where he creates his music most of the time which he is really into. It is a big part of his identity as he mentioned during the two interviews that took place with him. Jacob has a deep passion for nature and everything green. He had previously remarked that he had performed at climate change events such as Fridays for Future. He expressed his love for sustainability, laid-back soothing ambiances, and creating mental awareness (2022).

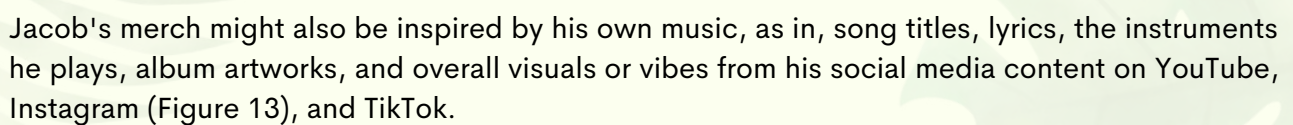

Pros

- For an artist to have their own music merch, this would be one of the ways to generate revenue even when the artist isn't performing or writing their next song or album (Larson, 2022). Selling merch would help Jacob follow up with the next phase of the value creation plan as it's an excellent method to fund an artist's musical endeavors. Moreover, selling merch is more than just earning revenue:
- It is a way to build deeper connections with an artist's fanbase. When fans purchase merch, they do not just buy it for garments, but also to build a deeper connection with the artist as if they are part of the same "tribe" (Veen, 2019).
- Free giveaways will delight and expand an artist's audience (Kumar, 2021).
- Inspire fans to create content by encouraging them to post images and videos of your merchandise with their own social media accounts (Kumar, 2021).
- "Generate free word-of-mouth advertising as fans discuss your products with others they meet" (Kumar, 2021).
- Jacob can promote his merch on social media such as Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, as well as during the caravan live session – live stream events in the third phase. Ideally, selling merchandise would provide funds for the third step of the value creation strategy.

Risks

- The following maybe some of the challenges/risks an artist would face while selling merch with tips on how to potentially overcome them:
- For an indie musician, it may seem risky to invest an amount of money without knowing when they would be reimbursed. Tip: It might be a large upfront investment unless the artist follows the presales method to get to know the number of fans interested in buying the merch to lower the risk level (Patterson, 2018).
- Requires more online selling/marketing skills. If the artist is not really into social media, digital marketing, mailing list analytics, UX, etc.... Setting up merch is not going to change that overnight (Patterson, 2018). Tip: To overcome this challenge, Jacob may need to get the help of professionals in the field.
- Low-quality merchandise is a risk, to solve this Jacob source the merch items at the right place and does not accept low-quality items to be sold associated with his brand.
- Too much self-promotion. According to research, engaging in too many self-promotional activities can lead to a reduction in client trust of about 50% (Walters, 2021). Tip: Be informative rather than repetitive (Walters, 2021). Tip: Rather than encouraging his audience to purchase the merchandise continuously, Jacob should explain how it relates to his personality, what it means to him, and why he created it.

Jacob has created a mood board for his branding that may be utilized as a source of inspiration for his merchandise. Figure (12) shows the mood board, which depicts aspects of nature, his caravan, house plants, fruit (oranges), skies, a cat, vinyl, camping, and landscapes.

Merchandise Items

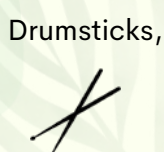

According to the Every press fashion blog (2018), if an artist is looking for new methods to promote their business, then selling T-shirts, hoodies, and beanies is an excellent option. A shirt only goes as far as the person wearing it, however, allowing an artist's work to reach a new audience in surprising and exciting ways repeatedly. Since Jacob mentioned he is into the idea of making a change in the world and that he had previously performed at climate change awareness events, the artist could sell tote bags which may potentially be a way to reduce the use of non-reusable plastic bags (Whiting, 2019). Phone cases are also another way of expression and may do very well to promote an artist and build a connection with their audience (Prodigi, 2021).

Suggested Items list

T-shirts,

Tote bags,

Hoodies,

Beanies,

Phone cases,

Merchandise Mockups

1. Tote bags

Other Designs:

Tote bag designs are inspired by Jacob's love for nature and song name "Shadow", EP name "Tools to Grow", song "Pavement Love" artwork, and Jacob's Instagram post.

2. T-shirts

Other Designs:

T-shirt designs are inspired by Jacob's song "Where Ends Meet", his own caravan, provided mood board, and plants.

3. Hoodies

Other Design:

Hoodie designs are inspired by Jacob's mood board and own caravan.

4. Phone cases

Other Designs:

5. Plant pots

Other Designs:

6. Beanies, drumsticks, socks

Method

To sell merch effectively, the following steps should be taken into consideration (Bonfire, 2021).

- Identifying target audience (Chapter 6: Description of Target audience).
- Creating a design suitable for the target audience and representative of the artist.
- Establishing a web shop store
- Finding the right custom merch platform.
- Promoting the merch.
- Building engagement with audience and earning revenue.
- Merch giveaways and donations should take place.

Legal and Ethical Aspects

The following are some of the ethical and legal aspects of selling merchandise

Pricing Constraints

- Deceptive pricing
Occurs when a misleading price is used to lure customers into their online store, there are usually, hidden charges or the item advertised may be unavailable (Argosino, 2015).
- Price discrimination
Price discrimination is a pricing technique in which consumers are charged varying prices for the same goods or services (Corporate Finance Institute, 2022).
- Predatory pricing
When a retail chain charges different prices in different geographic areas to eliminate competition in selected geographical areas (Argosino, 2015).

Promotion Constraints

- Deceptive advertising
When a retailer makes false or misleading advertising claims about the physical makeup of a product, the benefits to be gained by its use, or the appropriated uses of the product (Argosino, 2015).
- Palming off
Takes place when a retailer represents that merchandise is made by a firm other than the true manufacturer.
- Bait-and-Switch advertising
"Advertising promoting a product at an unrealistically low price to serve as "bait" and then trying to "switch" the customer to a higher-priced product" (Argosino, 2015).

Product Constraints

- Product liability laws
A product is required to be of quality, safe, and meet the ordinary expectations of a consumer. A seller of a product must attempt to foresee how a product may be misused and indicate the proper way of using it (FindLaw, 2018).
- Clothing size diversity
Not only is it ethical to provide customers with a very wide range of sizing that fits all types of bodies, it's also a marketing strategy in and of itself. People will think more highly of the brand if they see a variety of models and items in a variety of sizes. Many businesses were scrutinized because of their size or brand image (Lay, 2021).

Warranties, guarantees, and returns

"Under EU rules, a trader must repair, replace, reduce the price or give their customers a refund if goods they bought turned out to be faulty or do not look or work as advertised.

If a customer bought a product or a service online or outside of a shop (by telephone, mail order, from a door-to-door salesperson), they also have the right to cancel and return their order within 14 days, for any reason and without a justification." (Europa, 2021)

Ethical sourcing

Ethical sourcing refers to the process of ensuring that items are obtained in a responsible and sustainable manner, that employees involved in their manufacture are safe and treated fairly, and that environmental and social implications are considered during the sourcing process (McAvoy, 2016).

Value creation phase 3: Caravan live session livestream event

Introduction

The last step of the entire value creation plan ends with a live stream event, also referred to as a live session that will be streamed on YouTube right before the release of Jacob's new EP 'Tools to grow'. The live stream will be three hours long starting at 15.00 until 18.00, this way the live stream can be filmed during the golden hour and will end with a sunset to match the aesthetic of Jacob's brand identity and his EP. There is an opportunity for Jacob's super fans to attend the live stream by buying a specific type of merchandise piece which will indirectly serve as an entrance ticket to the live stream. The live stream will be filmed in and around Jacob's caravan that will be placed inside a garden with lots of flowers, plants and lights to match the EP, the caravan will also be decorated in the EP style. When the live stream ends at 18.00, Jacob's new EP will be released for everyone to listen to on all his used music platforms. This value creation idea fits the target group very well because we will try to match the target groups aesthetic the best way possible, so that they are comfortable attending and watching the live session. Also, the live session will be streamed on YouTube which is a very popular platform for our target group. The live session is all about Jacob's new EP with his new songs which fits the authenticity the target group desires.

Steps of the idea

Preparational steps

- Step 1: Planning

Planning the live session event is maybe one of the most important steps of the whole concept. Having a clear planning is essential for the live session event to go accordingly. This way we know exactly what needs to be done before what date and time, what kind of materials we need to have, the people we need to hire for the event and what needs to be done to prepare the caravan.

- Step 2: Finding out how many people are going to attend the live session event

To offer something extra to Jacob's superfans they can attend the caravan live session while it's being recorded. To be able to go to the event they need to buy a piece of merchandise from the merchandise line of the other previous phase of the creation plan, their order numbers serve as a sort of entrance ticket for the live session event. Therefore, there needs to be a count of how many people have bought the merch and how many are going to attend the live session. There will 50 pieces available of a specific kind of merchandise item that will serve as an entrance ticket.

- Step 3: Find and rent the appropriate equipment

To be able to do a live stream session there will be technical equipment such as cameras and microphones that needs to be rent. Therefore, we need to find out where we can rent such equipment and how much this will cost, which will be elaborated on in the budget.

- Step 4: Hire people for the live session

For the live session we would also need to hire people who can operate the technical equipment such as cameras and audio equipment. For that reason, we need to find out where we can hire people that can operate technical equipment and how much this would cost. Maybe we can find people who are willing to do it for free or a small salary as a project to gain experience on their CV.

- Step 5: Find a spot to do the live session

The live session event will take place in a garden type of environment to form a specific aesthetic we had in mind and to match the theme of the caravan and the new EP which is the reason of this live session event. First of all, we need to find a spot and make sure we are allowed to use it to film the live session on, or if there are steps that need to be taken before we are allowed to film the live session at that specific spot. It would be preferable to find a spot close to Amsterdam, that way the caravan doesn't need to travel far on the day of filming.

- Step 6: Decorate the caravan and the garden

When we have found the perfect spot to film the live session, we need to decorate the caravan and the garden accordingly to the theme of the live session, in this case, Jacob's new EP 'Tools to grow'. The caravan will be decorated with tools, instruments and other references to the EP. The garden will be decorated with lots of flowers and plants to match Jacob's brand identity.

Day of the live session

- Step 1: Bring the caravan to the filming spot

The first thing that needs to be done on the day of filming the live session is of course getting the caravan at the filming spot as the caravan is the most essential part of the live session and of Jacob's brand identity. It is easiest to bring the caravan to the spot by towing it with a car, this shouldn't be difficult to arrange.

- Step 2: Prepare everything needed before filming

With this step starts the preparing before the live session can start, therefore we need to set up everything non-technical first such as the placement of the caravan, the places where the attending fans can sit, making sure every decoration is still in place, setting up food and drinks for the attending fans and the crew, etc.

- Step 3: Set up technical equipment

After the previous step is done, we can start setting up all the technical equipment such as the cameras and audio equipment. We need to select the best placements for the cameras so that every angle is covered. Then, we need to do a sound and camera check to make sure everything works and there are no technical difficulties. If it turns out there are technical issues, there is enough time to solve them because we started the preparing early enough.

- Step 4: Brief the crew and let them and the artist set up

Now it's time for a quick brief on the technical crew where we make sure they understand everything that needs to be done during the live session event and what to do if anything should go wrong. Then we let them, Jacob, and Jacob's band prepare and take their respective places.

- Step 5: Let attending fans take their places

The last step before starting the caravan live session is to make sure that the attending fans have taken their seats and are ready for the live session to start.

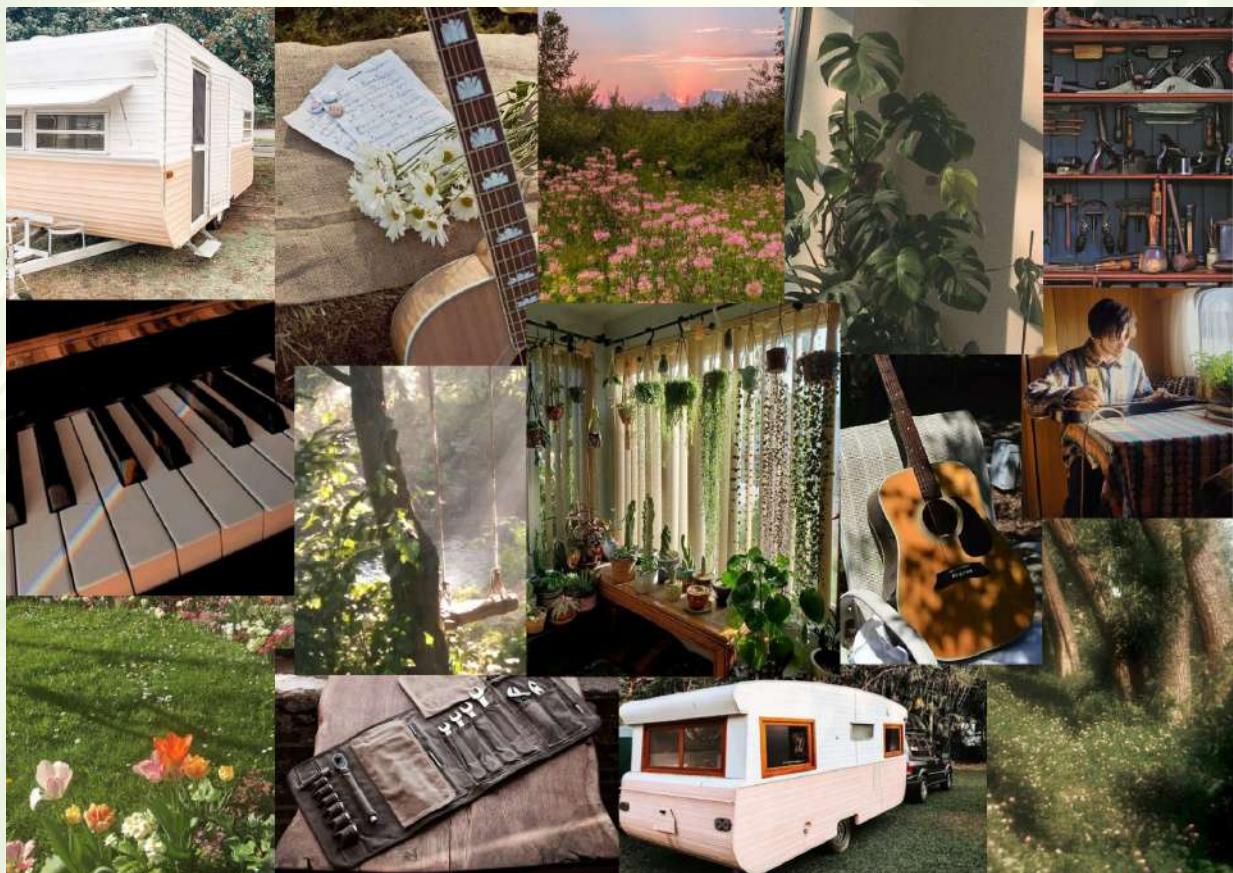

- Step 6: Start the live session

The last step is of course to start the live session itself.

Live session script

Time stamp	Who, what, where
14.50	Jacob greets and introduces himself to attending fans, gets set up for the start of the live stream, he starts outside the caravan crew does last technical check.
15.00	Start of the live stream, Jacob starts with his introduction.
15.05	Performs the first couple of songs from the EP.
15.40	Jacob moves back into the caravan, he talks about how the EP came to live and some anecdotes while making the EP.
16.00	Jacob performs songs from the EP.
16.30	Jacob moves back outside of the caravan and talks with the attending fans, he lets them ask him questions (Q&A)
17.00	Performs songs from the EP.
17.20	Jacob talks about how he started out with music and about his climate performances.
17.40	Jacob gives a speech about doing what you want in life and never giving up on your dreams.
17.45	Jacob moves back inside the caravan and performs the last couple of songs from the EP.
17.55	Jacob moves back outside and thanks everyone for coming and viewing his live stream, he gives the conclusion to the live stream.
18.00	The live stream ends.

Live session moodboard

Risks and how to avoid them

- The first risk of live streaming is the information you might unconsciously share with people that might want to do harm. (Jean, 2016). In this case, the most sensitive information Jacob could potentially give is the location of the live stream.

How to avoid this -> Therefore, it is very important for the location of the live stream to be secured and given to the least people possible. Maybe putting a disclaimer to the attending fans that the location of the live stream should not be shared to people who aren't attending to keep the peace. It's also important to choose the camera angles wisely so that it doesn't give away the location of the live stream.

- Another risk of the live stream might be the technical problems that could potentially occur during the filming process. For example, a microphone that stops working or a camera that has a malfunction.

How to avoid this -> Therefore, the technical equipment should be thoroughly tested by at least two test runs before the live stream. And right before the start of the stream, the last test should be conducted to see if everything still works the way it is supposed to work.

- And the last risk of a live stream already says it in the name. It's live. This means that everything that happens will be shown to the viewing audience, even the things that go wrong, slip-ups or embarrassing moments, unable to cut the frames out later with a regular filmed video. (Should my brand be live streaming, n.d.).

How to avoid this -> The best way to avoid any of this happening is to practice the live stream. By closely following the script written for the live stream and by having enough practice runs, there shouldn't be any problems with filming live.

Legal and ethical aspects

During this live session, there are some legal and ethical aspects we need to keep in mind. For example, the filming of the attending fans that will be present during the live stream. Even though the live stream revolves around Jacob, there is a good chance that some of the attending fans, if not all of them are going to be filmed somewhere during the live stream. Therefore, they should be asked permission through a signed contract to be filmed, and if any of them refuse they will unfortunately not be able to attend the live stream. Asking permission to film someone is very important, especially when the footage will be used for commercial purposes. When asking permission is failed, there may be a chance that the footage will be unusable, or it could even lead to costly legal troubles in the future. (Is it illegal to film someone without their consent?, n.d.). Which is something Jacob should avoid at all costs.

Another thing that should be kept in mind is copywriting music. (Martin, 2018). Now for this live stream, Jacob will only be using his own music Youtube could still think he's using copyrighted music. Therefore, Jacob should contact Youtube and make sure to avoid them putting any claims on his live stream while it's going.

Live session mockups

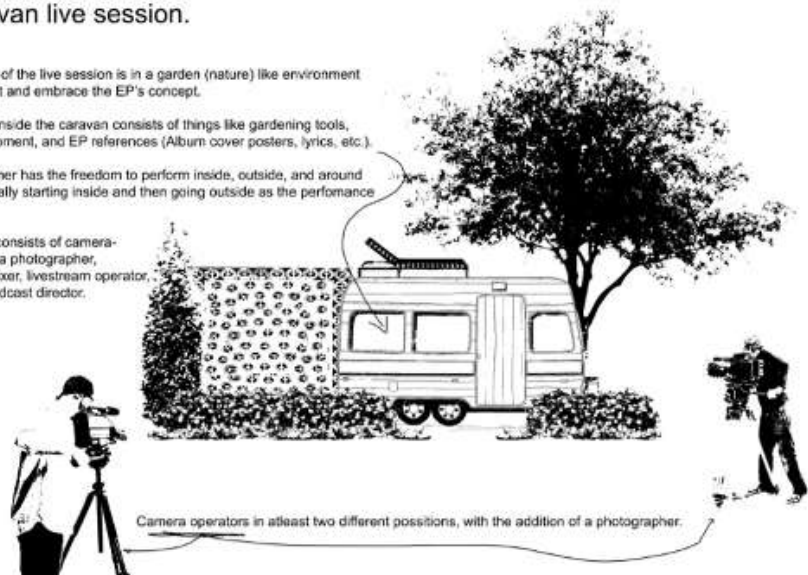

Jacob Drescher Caravan live session.

The setting of the live session is in a garden (nature) like environment to represent and embrace the EP's concept.

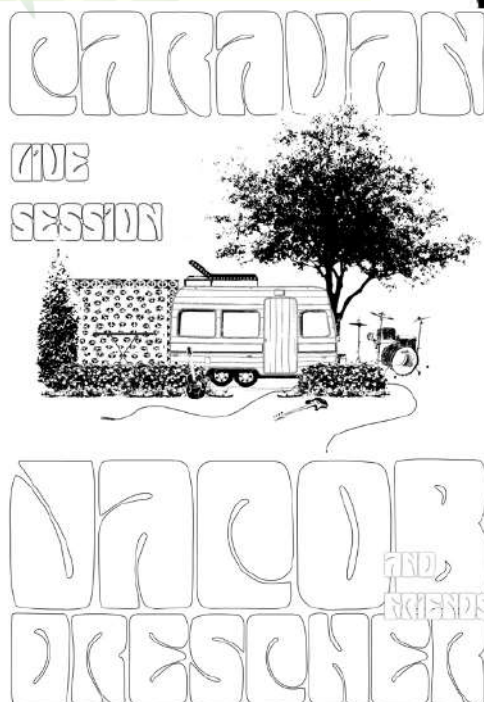

The decor inside the caravan consists of things like gardening tools, music equipment, and EP references (Album cover posters, lyrics, etc.).

The performer has the freedom to perform inside, outside, and around the set. Ideally starting inside and then going outside as the performance advances.

*The crew consists of camera operators, a photographer, a sound mixer, livestream operator, and a broadcast director.

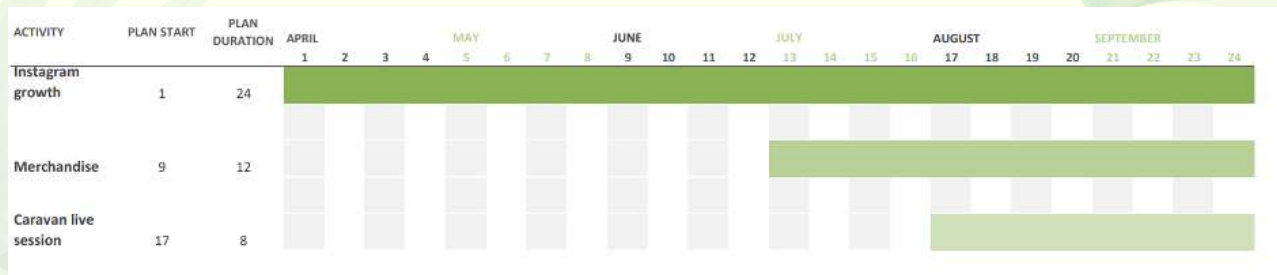

Camera operators in atleast two different positions, with the addition of a photographer.

Media Plan

Introduction

The complete media plan shown in the following chapter will cover a time period of the next six months, building up to the release of Jacob's new EP called Tools to Grow. As can be seen in the chart below, the Instagram growth concept will take up six months, the merchandise three months, and the caravan live session two months. The specific months may be subject to change since the exact release date is still unknown.

Instagram growth

The two main objectives of the following Instagram growth media plan are to:

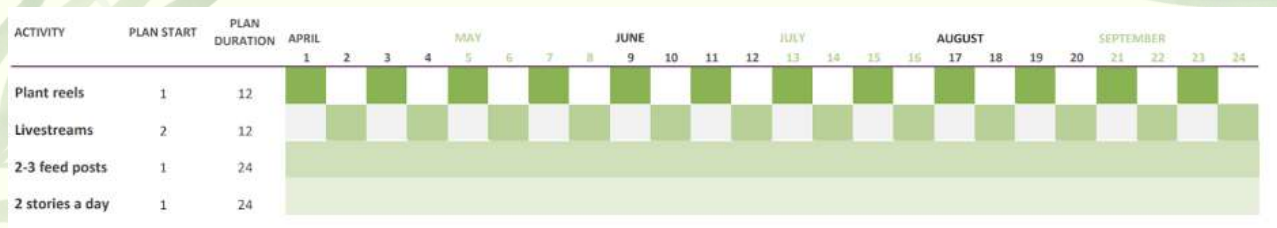

- Increase awareness

Through this media plan, we want to make the artist more well-known under a larger group of people.

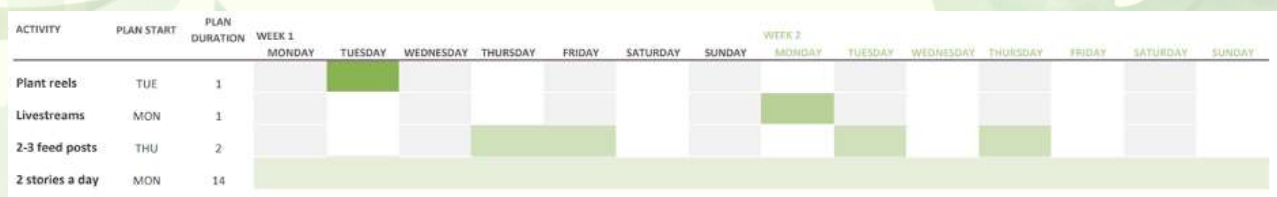

- Build brand recognition

By posting authentic and recognizable content, we want to make sure that the artist comes to have a distinct image.

As mentioned in the value creation concept chapter, the media plan to build a larger Instagram following mainly focuses on the plant reels and the livestreams, which are accompanied by feed posts and stories. This would make the monthly media plan look something like the chart that is shown below.

However, this chart lacks some detail, which is why a two-week chart has been set up to clear things up. This can be seen below.

Aside from which day of the week to post, research has also proven that certain times of day provide a larger chance of success and engagement.

Recommended times to post

- Feed posts/ reels

The best time to post on Instagram in general is on Tuesday from 11:00 to 14:00 and the worst day to post is Sunday (Arens, 2021). Specific to the media and entertainment industry, the best time to post is either Tuesday or Thursday from 12:00 to 15:00 (Newberry, 2020). This is why the feed posts in the weekly chart are scheduled mostly on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Other than those days, workdays would be fine, but the weekend is not recommended.

- Livestreams

Ideally Jacob would do his livestreams from 19:00 to 21:00 from Monday to Friday. Around lunchtime at 12:00 would also be a good time. This is when people generally have the most downtime to watch a livestream (Das, 2021).

- Stories

The ideal time for Jacob to post his daily stories would be around lunchtime. The hours before work generally starts and late afternoons also provide a good chance at a high viewcount (Das, 2021).

Merchandise

The main objectives of the merchandise media plan are

- Awareness

By using promotion strategies that are part of this media plan, it is intended for Jacob Drescher to gain the attention of more people.

- Brand recognition

Mostly by promoting the design of the merchandise, we hope for Jacob to develop a distinctive brand in people's eyes.

- Purchase intent

The goal of this media plan is mainly to get fans to buy the merchandise that is being sold.

Step 1

The first thing that needs to be done is setting up an online shop where the merchandise will be sold in the future. This can be done through Shopify or another website-building service of choice. It is also recommended to set up a merchandise shop on Instagram, since the platform is used by 44% of users to shop on a weekly basis (McLachlan, 2022a).

Step 2

Aside from setting up a shop, Jacob needs to start teasing and promoting his upcoming merchandise line to his audience through posting about it on his Instagram feed and stories. A pre-sale also needs to be announced so that an estimate of orders can be established. The amount of interest fans have in the merch line will determine how many items must be produced. During this time there also needs to be mentioned that buying a specific merch item will function as a ticket to attend the caravan live session. Of course, this item has a limited stock to keep the number of attendees under control. From this moment on, Jacob starts to promote the merchandise on both his Instagram and TikTok account to spread awareness.

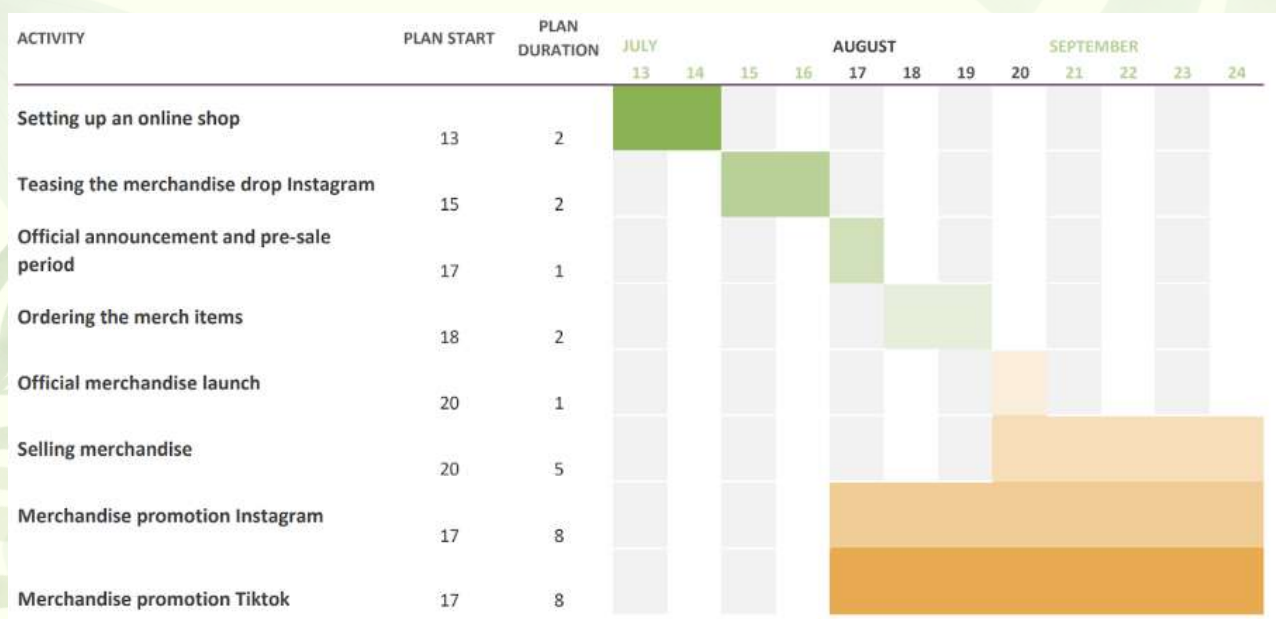

Step 3

After having accumulated the data from the pre-sale, there can now be determined how many merchandise items need to be ordered. Ordering and waiting for them to arrive will take around two weeks. During this time Jacob is still promoting the merchandise on social media and building hype around the upcoming official launch. Ideally, he would promote the merchandise with 1 Instagram feed post and 1 TikTok video per week. Aside from this, a couple of Instagram stories should be posted about the merchandise per week.

Step 4

Finally, the merchandise is officially launched and the items are ready to be shipped to the customers. During the entire period that the merch is being sold, Jacob will promote it on his social media channels by for example wearing it in his posts, encouraging his fans to buy it, asking fans who bought his merchandise to post about it on their social media and to tell their friends and family about it. The content that is being posted on Instagram and TikTok is closely related to each other, since the goal of both is to promote the merchandise. However, on Instagram it might be better to directly promote the merchandise in the form of announcements, while TikTok is a better place to indirectly promote the items in a more creative way. Since it is possible to go extremely viral on this platform quite easily, it is better to continue making regular videos related to Jacob's niche such as music and plant videos, as well as following certain trends. In these videos, he could be wearing the merch and also quickly mentioning his new merchandise line in the video and caption. In this way, a larger audience comes to see his merchandise without the sole reason of the video being to promote it.

The previously described method is visualized in the chart below.

Caravan live session

The main objectives for the caravan live session media plan are:

- Spreading awareness
- Using online and physical promotion, the goal is to have an increase in people that know and acknowledge Jacob Drescher as an artist.
- Increase fan engagement
- The goal using this media plan is to get fans to actually engage with and attend the event that is being organized.

Step 1

The first thing that needs to be done regarding media, is teasing the caravan live session on social media. This can be done by acting a bit mysterious and hinting to the fans that something exciting is about to happen. It is best to do this through Instagram stories since they are temporary. This teasing is not worth an entire feed post because there is nothing specific to be announced yet. However, it is possible to use the captions on regular posts to create some suspicion and excitement among the fans by a short statement.

Step 2

After having built up some excitement among fans, the official announcement for the caravan live session can be made. Then, the active promotion period on social media can be started. Ideally Jacob would post about the live event once every week both on Instagram and TikTok. However, stories about the livestream can be posted more regularly. Since the online promotion period for the live session and the merchandise overlap, some of these promotional posts can merge both of the topics together to prevent overcrowding Jacob's Instagram and TikTok feed with promotional content. Besides, the merchandise and the live session are closely related because a certain merchandise item also serves as a ticket to the physical live session, so the merging of content should be no problem.

Step 3

After the official merch launch in week 20 a physical promotional period is planned. This would consist of posters being hung around the city center of Amsterdam and Haarlem promoting the online livestream. An example of this poster is shown on the side of this page. The choice has been made to use this medium at a later time after the merchandise launch, since we wanted to reserve the chance to physically attend the live session for Jacob's 'superfans' that already followed him on Instagram or Tiktok. During this time, Jacob continues to promote the caravan live session on his Instagram and TikTok account as mentioned before.

Step 4

Finally, the day of the event arrives. Media wise, this would be a great opportunity to share behind the scenes content on Jacob's Instagram and TikTok. The most convenient way to do this is using Instagram stories, since they are usually shot and posted in the moment directly. After the event is a better time to post curated feed posts such as atmospheric TikTok videos that show what the event was like and a carousel of professional photos from the live session on Instagram.

A visualization of the described media plan can be seen below.

Appendix

Appendix A: Introduction Interview with Jacob Drescher - Summary

Date: 10/02/2022

The following is a summary of an introductory interview that took place on the 10th of February 2022 with Jacob Drescher, singer, songwriter, and record producer at InHolland University of Applied Sciences, Haarlem.

Interview Topic: Introduction

Introduction

Jacob introduces himself: 21 years old, from Limburg, lives in Amsterdam, 1st-year Creative Artist at InHolland. He produces indie-pop, jazz-influenced, folk, organic, mellow music. He is going to perform with his band in April. They are currently preparing for that.

Jacob talked about how he started playing guitar when he started going to college, he started writing songs and performing, making music, recording, and uploading to Spotify which went well. He started doing guitar covers on Instagram and posting about it on multiple channels which received recognition. In his study program, they have 2 projects every two weeks, which Jacob thinks is not a lot of time to finish something completely. Jacob contacted playlist owners/makers to see if they liked the songs he made to get them to maybe add it to a playlist that fits the genre and has a lot of followers. He noted that it is a lot of work, and it does not always go according to plan, but he gained a lot of following with this method. Jacob produces/records his songs by himself and works on the final mix with a friend(s)/producers but now he is part of a band for a few months with the goal to prepare for more shows.

Jacob:

- Plays electric guitar as the main instrument and is a vocalist.
- Owns studio in his caravan
- Combines studying with his music career which he explains go hand in hand
- Used Instagram for promotion on his own page
- Has contact list of venue owners, playlist owners, managing team which he is willing to share
- Has little experience performing at venues
- Has a concept EP that he would like to soon release
- Unsure about whether he should release a single now or finish the EP first.
- Open to feedback and input

Main Influences

Louie Zong, Hozier, Laura Marling, folk musicians, Kate Bollinger, Pino Palladino, Pablo Brooks
Jacob performed at a festival and TV shows, radio, small venues in Limburg, Live Music: Fridays for Future in Munich, Cologne, Hamburg, Berlin.

Objectives

- Exploring Jacob's brand identity

Appendix B: Value Creation Interview with Jacob Drescher - Summary

Date: 15/03/2022

The following is a summary of an interview that took place on the 15th of March 2022 with Jacob Drescher, singer, songwriter, and record producer at InHolland University of Applied Sciences, Haarlem.

Interview Topic: Value Creation

Current

Jacob is working on an EP right now, before the EP comes out, he is willing to release a single that he almost has half-finished. All the lyrics for each song for his EP are already written, the recording part is still not done yet, however. He hopes to be done with EP this summer, but he is hesitant whether that is possible or not, "That's why he is planning to first release another single that's more of a different genre than his, and then after that, the EP can be released probably around the same time, next year." – Jacob.

The song "Where Ends Meet" will be a part of the EP.

Jacob is glad he has his band now, but he would also like to have a booker or maybe a manager to get some extra help for instance for future collaborations, bookings, or the EP release since doing it all by himself is not that easy.

Branding

Jacob would like to continue incorporating the caravan in his branding.

For aesthetics, media, and promotion plans, I would like for you to check out Pablo Brooks.

Jacob is still unsure about what his EP would be named as, he thought of the name "Tools to Grow" because "that's like the stuff you use in the garden and it's about growing as a person, that's the idea behind the whole EP.". He would like that every song has a different cover, that's what Pablo Brooks also did. <https://pablobrooks.com/>

Jacob mainly writes music about mental health, growing in or out of relationships, new experiences, and growing up as a person. He is into green and organic sounds. He likes grounded, playful, melancholic, and dreamy aesthetics. He likes the color green. He likes the work of Louie Zong especially Greenhouse <https://www.louiezong.com/>
<https://louiezong.bandcamp.com/album/greenhouse>

–"What message would you like to convey to your audience?"

"Well, it's always kind of a little different per song. I like to make songs that inspire people. I like to get people to chill and have a good time and to create a safe zone for them to be comfortable in. I also like to create music that connects people. Soothing and calming are a big part of me. I also like to make music for people to enjoy with their friends in the summertime."

Promotion

Jacob doesn't pay so much attention to the numbers when it comes to social media followers. He likes to curate playlists on Spotify and share them on his Instagram page. He would like to have organic growth on Instagram.

–“Would you like to handle this release the same way you handled your previous releases?”

“I would like to take it more seriously this time and would like to tour with the EP, and I would love to work with bloggers or someone who can support me with the promotional side of the release.”.

Jacob would like to be featured on a magazine or a blog and he said he would like to mainly focus on the European audience, but he is also interested in the American audience.

Jacob contacted playlist curators on Spotify previously to get featured on them and would like to keep doing so in the future. He also tried promoting his music using his social media.

He would like to do live sessions in his caravan for YouTube or TikTok for instance, he tried it before, but it never really seemed to work for him as he never got the time to do it regularly. The most valuable music platform for Jacob is Spotify, he believes that's where his most audience is. He is however interested in growing on Apple Music for instance.

Target Audience

Jacob describes his target audience to be between the age of 14/15-28. genZs, anyone interested in pop culture. Perhaps also people who listen to Phoebe Bridgers, Laura Marling, Bruno Major, and Cavetown would like to listen to Jacob's music. Jacob adds “it might be a good idea to look at how these artists would describe their fanbase and maybe you can learn about my target audience.”. Jacob mentioned he doesn't have a large fanbase in The Netherlands so he would like to grow his audience here as well.

Jacob says that starting next summer he would like to start performing more live and try to get to know his audience more in real life.

Touring

For a start, he would like to start touring in The Netherlands and maybe in Germany. He does not have any concrete plans for touring, however. Before starting touring perhaps it's a good idea to send Jacob's music to more German or Spanish curated playlists to grow his audience there.

Jacob likes to create events with his friends who are also musicians and perform together at a venue as it's a good way to connect with the community. He likes the idea of continuing to do that in the future, but he thinks it's a lot of work.

Jacob thinks it's important to play at live shows before the EP release to get a head start, get to know his fans, and build more audience. He also expresses his interest in a promotion plan for his EP touring and merch. He would like to release the songs one by one in about 4/5 months.

Value idea 1: Jacob said he would like to make a song in a different genre than his before releasing his EP. We could give him an analysis of a genre that is widely trendy today other than his that we think could boost his career and gain more audience.

Value idea 2: Jacob mentioned that following his career all by himself is not very easy, we could help him get in contact with a booker or a manager or an assistant to help him with organizational or any type of timing-consuming tasks.

Value idea 3: Jacob mentioned he is inspired by Louie Zong's idea of the Greenhouse album. We could give him a branding concept for his EP which currently goes under the name "Tools To Grow".

Value idea 4: Jacob said he would like to tour after releasing his EP and he would like some help with planning it, perhaps we could come up with a tour plan according to where his audience are mostly located according to Chartmetric data.

Value idea 5: Jacob expressed his interest in growing his fanbase on Instagram. We could come up with a media plan specifically focusing on Instagram and do some research on how an artist could grow on there.

Value idea 6: Jacob liked the idea of being featured in a blog/post/...etc. Perhaps we could help him get in touch with someone/agency/social media page/blog....etc. regarding this. Whether in Europe or USA.

Value idea 7: Jacob he said he would like to do live stream sessions on both YouTube and TikTok perhaps we could help him with planning it efficiently and effectively to boost his career.

Value idea 8: Help Jacob gets featured on more Spotify playlists, especially with Dutch and German audience since he expressed interest in doing a tour in both the Netherlands and Germany.

Value idea 9: Since Jacob said he would like to sell merch and that he is inspired by Cavetown's merch, perhaps we could help him with ideas and do some research about how he could sell it and where, for example.

Value idea 10: Jacob said he would like his music to be synced in a TV show, for instance, perhaps we could help get in contact with someone/agency/...etc. about this.

Value idea 11: Jacob said he would like to further collaborate with more artists and he is open to all genres, perhaps we could help him find connections with artists regarding this.

Value idea 12: Jacob said he would like to host more events where he plays with other artists as he did before, perhaps we could provide him with planning for the next couple of months and some ideas about the events and what could they be or where could he host them.

Value idea 13: Jacob said that he never hesitates to play shows and that he is open to playing at InHolland. Perhaps we could help him get in contact with venues and/or any place where they have live performances including libraries/museums /intellectual venues/...etc.
